AFL Leader Gets Promise Of Support For Any Action Undertaken

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—A revolt against President Roosevelt's War Labor Board was in full swing at the 63rd annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in Boston today amid the threat of new wartime strikes.

It found Mr. Roosevelt's own friends against him, in this respect at least. The uprising was led by Daniel J. Tobin, staunch friend of the President and chairman of the AFL's big teamsters union, which has been accused of conducting some high-handed strikes of its own.

Tobin, at the end of the fifth day of the convention yesterday, disclosed that he had sent a message to WLB Chairman William Davis protesting against the board's delay in settling labor disputes. He warned that the heads of large unions no longer would be able to prevent strikes among their members unless the WLB speeded up its work.

The teamsters' leader said, in effect, that labor, like industry, was fed up with the overlapping jurisdiction and jealousies among the new deal's government bureaus in Washington.

Support Promised

His words were having surprising ramifications today. Many of the federation's biggest unions, it was learned, informed him that they would support any move he wishes to make, including the mass resignation of all AFL leaders now serving on the WLB.

Tobin's denunciation of the way the board has bogged down increased prospects that the 600 convention delegates would pass a resolution next week demanding that the administration's so-called Little Steel Formula now holding wages in check be scuttled.

Next week also will bring a long awaited vote on the application of John L. Lewis and his 600,000 United Mine Workers to return to the AFL.

The delegates were still talking mainly about the clash between (Continued on Page Two)

COLUMBUS, Oct. 9.—The heavy course of instruction for Lockbourne Army Air Base's Flying Fortress students took another added load with an announcement by Colonel John S. Gullet, base commanding officer, that bombing approach flying will be added to the course.

The new subject will not lengthen the present nine-week course of instruction for the students, but will just be sandwiched in between the other subjects now being taught.

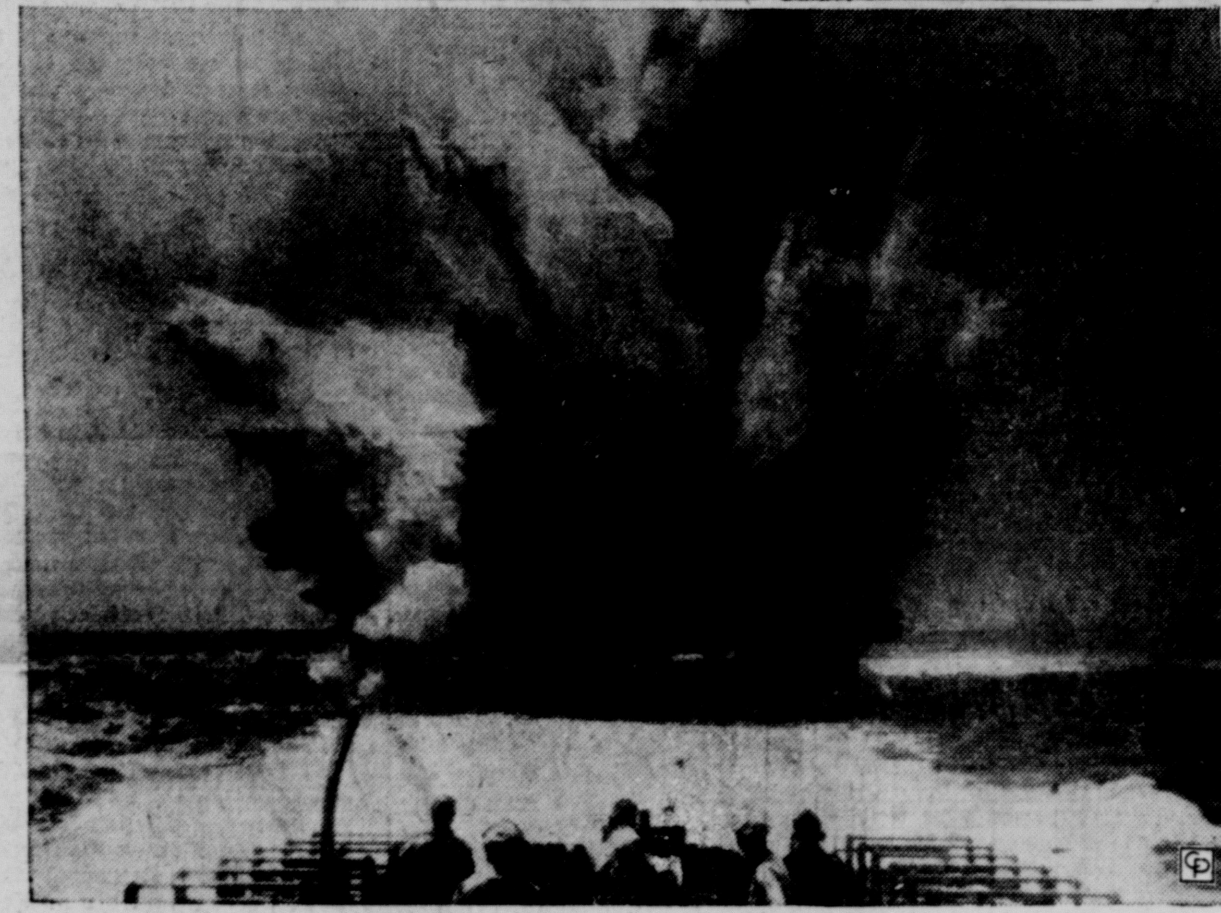

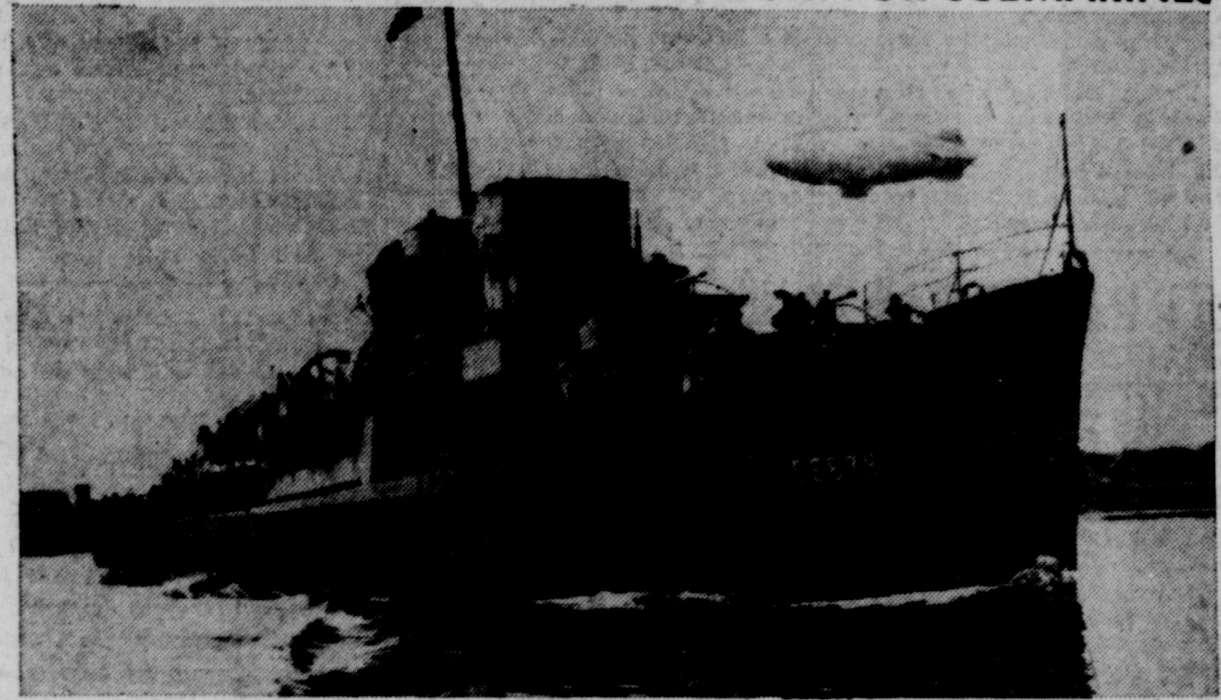

The program is designed to develop a closer spirit of coordination between the pilot and his bombardier and to increase the preciseness of precision bombing in combat missions.

American Consumers To Pay $25,000,000 More For 1943-44 Crop

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Federal food experts estimated today that the recent one cent "break through" on newly estimated apple price ceilings will cost American consumers more than $25,000,000 on the 1943-44 crop.

OPA originally announced a national annual average price on apples of from nine to 10 cents a pound, but it was raised to 10-11 cents by order of Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson after a protest by apple growers.

At the same time, OPA officials challenged statements of the national industrial conference board that living costs went up in September. The OPA argued on the basis of tentative statistics (Continued on Page Two)

Pickaway county's subscriptions to the Third War Loan drive are continuing to mount, although slowly during the last few days. Clark Will, chairman of the campaign, said Saturday that money already collected totals $1,348,069, more than $17,000 above the quota.

The present total represents purchases by 2,979 individuals, slightly more than 10 percent of the county's population.

Money is continuing to come in, the drive chief said, with Series E, F and G bonds sold during the next few days to count in the county's total. All bonds cleared through the Federal Reserve bank by October 16 are added to the county's subscriptions.

DRAFT NOTICES SOON TO GO TO LOCAL FATHERS

Pre-Pearl Harbor fathers of draft age in Circleville and Pickaway county can expect to receive notices of induction during the next 10 days to two weeks. Selective Service board disclosed Saturday that about three-fifths of the November draft contingent would consist of fathers, the other two-fifths to be comprised of 18-year-olds, men whose deferments have ended and others whose classifications have been changed for one reason or another.

The group goes early in the month, so notices will be sent before long. Each person to be inducted must have a notice of his induction date at least 10 days before the contingent leaves.

While Selective Service board is not permitted to reveal the exact number of men to be taken, the November quota is "less than 50."

The board is continuing to send notices of reopening of classification to its pre-Pearl Harbor dads and many have already received cards that they have been placed in I-A which means they are available for immediate service.

The county's October contingent will leave during the next week, this group being larger than any sent during the Summer.

It will clean up the class which includes married men who have wives only as dependents. The board pointed out that it is sending no pre-Pearl Harbor fathers who have abided by Selective Service regulations. Several draft age dads are going in the October call, but the board said they are men who failed or refused to get into essential industry under a national Selective Service ruling established several months ago.

U. S. Fighting Men Score New Victories On Land, Sea And In Air

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—American forces in the Pacific poised today for new blows against the Japanese, as friendly and enemy reports indicated fresh progress by United States fighting men on land, sea and in the air.

The Tokyo radio told of a new raid on Wake island in the mid-Pacific, the second such assault in a few days.

In the South Pacific the Central Solomons appeared to be safely in American hands as the Japanese sought to evacuate the remnants of their once powerful force on Kolombangara island.

Dispatches from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported the crippling of a five ship Japanese naval squadron off Vella Lavella island. One cruiser and two (Continued on Page Two)

The baby boy was born to Mrs. Leone Shafer Scott, the flyer's widow, yesterday afternoon. Physicians said the mother also was "doing fine."

According to the maternal grandmother, Mrs. H. C. Kochenderfer, of Greenwich, O., who was in Columbus for the "blessed event," the baby was named Don for his father and Sands for Col. Harry F. Sands, Jr., a fraternity brother of Captain Scott, who is now in the South Pacific area.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Congressional investigators into lend-lease, the Office of War Information and other government agencies and activities today appeared to be the most concrete result of the global tour of five senators.

The second of two executive sessions held by the senate to hear intimate details of activities in the world theatres of war produced serious charges of waste of money and mismanagement of lend-lease.

Despite injunctions of secrecy, senators reported that Sen. Ralph O. Brewster (R) Maine, revealed:

1. The United States is buying nickel from Canada, which was mined in the Free French New Caledonia group of islands and sold to firms in Australia before being resold to Canada, with profits taken along the line and an export tax of 17 cents a pound being paid the French.

2. Lend-lease is committed to supplying 30,000 to 40,000 trucks for civilian use in Australia in a year while comparable United States civilian allotment is 15,000.

3. Lend-lease goods have been shipped where not wanted. One Pacific island received vaporized oil for which it had no use. Another received trucks which could not be used.

4. The United States is building oil refineries to get Iranian oil—which will come from American-owned reserves—although British refineries do not operate at capacity.

5. Despite lend-lease shipments, the United States has a balance of trade of $300,000,000 against it.

Lieut. John Goodchild Killed In Collision Of Training Planes

Lieutenant John H. Goodchild, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Goodchild, Watt street, was killed Friday in an airplane accident near Deland, Fla. Announcement of his death was made Saturday by the commanding officer of the Oriando air field where young Goodchild was based.

Two other Army pilots were also killed in the accident, while a third parachuted to safety. The air base announced that two trainer planes collided near Deland.

In addition to Lieutenant Goodchild, the dead were listed as; Lieutenant James P. Corbin, San Mateo, Cal.; Lieutenant Arthur D. Ebick, Rome, New York. The pilot who parachuted to safety was Lieutenant Lawrence Amitt, Pittsfield, Maine.

Lieutenant Goodchild is survived by a widow, Rosemary Huffer Goodchild, whom he married in May after arriving home for a furlough after winning his wings as a pilot. Mrs. Goodchild has been living with her husband in Orlando, the young couple occupying an apartment there. His parents and a brother, Don, who is in the Navy V-12 school at Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, also survive.

No other information was announced by the air base concerning the accident which caused death of one of Circleville's best known young men.

Lieutenant Goodchild entered the Army air corps before he became 18 years of age. During his entire training period he was the youngest member of his class.

Born in Circleville, November 10, 1923, he had spent his entire life here.

News of the youth's death was received in Circleville first by The Daily Herald. Mrs. Roy Huffer, mother of Mrs. Goodchild, confirmed the fatal accident when she telephoned her daughter in Orlando. Completely overcome by the death of her husband, Mrs. Goodchild was with friends. She said the accident happened Friday night.

Mrs. Goodchild expects to arrive in Circleville Monday. When the body of the young flier will reach the city is not yet known.

$50 a Month Soldiers In U. S. Trucks Doing Work of 1,000 Strikers

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 9.—Army trucks were used today to haul vital materials to and from war plants in the Nashville area as the strike of more than 1,000 truck drivers in the Nashville district continued.

Major E. J. Bennett of the industrial relations section of the Army Air Forces said he had authority from Washington to take steps to assure uninterrupted movement of needed materials, including fabricated airplane parts, among war plants in Tennessee.

The strikers meanwhile were under orders from the War Labor Board in Washington to halt their strike and return to work under pain of jeopardizing cases now pending before the board.

The order was contained in a telegram to J. L. Hitchcock, chairman of the negotiating committee of the southeastern area for the Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Stable Helpers.

Teamsters officials in six other southern cities—Birmingham, and Mobile, Ala., Memphis and Chattanooga, Tenn., New Orleans, La., and Louisville, Ky.—received similar telegrams.

Members of the Nashville Motor Carriers Trucking Association warned the strikers that they must be back at work by 9 a. m. today, otherwise "their seniority will be at issue and those that are reemployed will be considered as new employees."

The association also warned that it would turn over the names of strikers to their draft boards. The operators declared that 75 percent of the trucks tied up were carrying war materials.

At a meeting Friday afternoon, attended by only 90 of the striking workers, it was voted that the Nashville walkout would continue. The strike began Wednesday.

Cause of the strike was the union members dissatisfaction over progress in negotiations for increased wages and vacations.

JAP WALKS TO DEATH CHAMBER RAPPING TOKYO

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 9.—Preparations were being made today for the burial of George Honda, Denver Japanese-American restaurant owner, who went to his death last night in the state's lethal gas chamber at the state penitentiary at Canon City.

Warden Roy Best said the body had not been claimed and would be buried in the prison cemetery.

Honda marched to the death chamber expressing hope that the Allies would win the war and showing no signs of fear. He was convicted of murdering his wife, attacking her with a butcher knife in the lobby of a Denver hotel.

GERMAN PEACE MOVE EXPECTED

Hitler Believed Ready To Make Bid To Russia If Moscow Parley Fails

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Diplomatic Washington believes today that Germany is about to launch a powerful peace offensive.

The Nazi peace move is expected to coincide with the Moscow conference of American, British and Soviet foreign ministers this month.

Diplomatic opinion in Washington is convinced Germany will do its utmost to prevent the United States and Great Britain from reaching a satisfactory understanding with the Soviet union at the Moscow meeting.

It is believed the German peace offensive will be aimed at trying to take immediate advantage of any serious differences of opinion which may arise between the Anglo-American representatives and the Soviets at the conference.

If anything approaching a deadlock should develop in the Allied talks in Moscow, it is thought the Germans will step in instantly with a peace overture to Russia through Japanese diplomatic channels.

The possibility is seen that the German high command might offer to replace Adolf Hitler's Nazi regime with a military government and give Russia a free hand (Continued on Page Two)

Soviet Armies Surge Ahead On Vast Front And Halt Hun Counterattacks

By International News Service
Patrols of the Fifth Army in Italy today smashed their way across the swollen Volturno river to press the Allied drive on Rome. Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced that units on the left wing of the front manned by the Fifth Army had effected the crossing.

Advances of two to three miles by both the Fifth Army and the Eighth Army at the eastern end of the trans-peninsular battle line were reported.

In one battle in the Termoli area Eighth Army armored forces knocked out 15 of a force of 30 German tanks.

Caserta, seven miles southeast of captured Capua, was occupied by the Fifth Army.

Huns Must Fall Back

A hasty retreat to the north banks of the rivers from Capua eastward to Benevento was seen as the only choice of Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring if his remnant units below the Volturno and Calore are to escape annihilation.

The German positions between Capua and Benevento were threatened with encirclement as a result of the swift march to the south bank of the Volturno by the Fifth Army along a 16-mile front from the west coast of Italy eastward to Capua. The Nazis were menaced in the Benevento sector by the right wing of American Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's army.

Gen. Clark reached the Volturno on the west in a nine-mile northward advance which resulted in occupation of historic Capua and Grazzanise and Volturno to the west.

German Cities Pounded

Berlin, Bremen, Hanover and targets in the industrial Ruhr valley were blasted by Royal Air Force night bombers in the mounting battle of Germany.

The raids marked the second successive night in which three or more cities in the Reich were blasted by the R. A. F. and followed only a short time after a blistering twin assault on Bremen and near-by Vegesack by American Flying Fortresses and Liberators bombers.

FBI FAILS TO FIND SABOTAGE IN $500,000 FIRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—A routine investigation by FBI and Navy intelligence agents had discounted sabotage today as the cause of New York's first five-alarm fire since the burning of the former luxury liner Normandie in February, 1942.

Firemen from 31 companies battled for almost two hours to control a waterfront blaze in the five-story terminal warehouse of the International Diesel Electric Company, Long Island City. An estimated $500,000 worth of electrical equipment was destroyed.

Water was poured on the flames from street hoses, two fire boats and two fire towers. The blaze was brought under control just as it appeared that firemen would no longer be able to remain within working distance.

Seven firemen were slightly injured, but the few male employees in the structure when the fire started escaped safely.

Fifteen minutes after the watchman completed a routine check last night smoke began pouring from the pier end of the building which extends into the East river. Assistant Fire Chief John J. McCarthy expressed belief that sparks from fires made by small boys in an adjoining play space ignited the building's tar roof.

Patrols of the Fifth Army in Italy today smashed their way across the swollen Volturno river to press the Allied drive on Rome.

Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced that units on the left wing of the front manned by the Fifth Army had effected the crossing.

Advances of two to three miles by both the Fifth Army and the Eighth Army at the eastern end of the trans-peninsular battle line were reported.

In one battle in the Termoli area Eighth Army armored forces knocked out 15 of a force of 30 German tanks.

Caserta, seven miles southeast of captured Capua, was occupied by the Fifth Army.

Huns Must Fall Back

A hasty retreat to the north banks of the rivers from Capua eastward to Benevento was seen as the only chance of Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring if his remnant units below the Volturno and Calore are to escape annihilation.

The German positions between Capua and Benevento were threatened with encirclement as a result of the swift march to the south bank of the Volturno by the Fifth Army along a 16-mile front from the west coast of Italy eastward to Capua. The Nazis were menaced in the Benevento sector by the right wing of American Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's army.

Gen. Clark reached the Volturno on the west in a nine-mile northward advance which resulted in occupation of historic Capua and Grazzanise and Volturno to the west.

German Cities Pounded

Berlin, Bremen, Hanover and targets in the industrial Ruhr valley were blasted by Royal Air Force night bombers in the mounting battle of Germany.

The raids marked the second successive night in which three or more cities in the Reich were blasted by the R. A. F. and followed only a short time after a blistering twin assault on Bremen and near-by Vegesack by American Flying Fortresses and Liberator bombers.

Hanover, manufacturing center in northeast Germany, bore the brunt of the attack.

FBI FAILS TO FIND SABOTAGE IN $500,000 FIRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—A routine investigation by FBI and Navy intelligence agents had discounted sabotage today as the cause of New York's first five-alarm fire since the burning of the former luxury liner Normandie in February, 1942.

Firemen from 31 companies battled for almost two hours to control a waterfront blaze in the five-story terminal warehouse of the International Diesel Electric Company, Long Island City. An estimated $500,000 worth of electrical equipment was destroyed.

Water was poured on the flames from street hoses, two fire boats and two fire towers. The blaze was brought under control just as it appeared that firemen would no longer be able to remain within working distance.

Seven firemen were slightly injured, but the few male employees in the structure when the fire started escaped safely.

Fifteen minutes after the watchman completed a routine check last night smoke began pouring from the pier end of the building which extends into the East river.

Assistant Fire Chief John J. McCarthy expressed belief that sparks from fires made by small boys in an adjoining play space ignited the building's tar roof.

A smaller force than that which plastered Hanover attacked the seared port of Bremen last night from the daylight assault by the United States Eighth Air Force. Berlin and objectives in the Ruhr were tackled by speedy Mosquito bombers. The large-scale operations cost the R. A. F. 31 bombers.

Feeble Retaliation In the feeble retaliation for the blistering assaults on the Reich by Allied craft, Nazi planes returned over England for the second straight night and dropped bombs along the Thames river estuary. Some damage and casualties were reported.

A few German aircraft flew over parts of Kent last night and two reached the London outskirts, an air ministry communique said. Bombs were dropped at several points but there was little damage and only a small number of people were killed.

Two Nazi planes were destroyed.

One of the greatest aerial victories of the war was won by the United States Eighth Air Force in its daylight attack yesterday against the Nazi port of Bremen and the near-by submarine building center of Vegesack.

Eighth Air Force headquarters announced that the Flying Fortresses, Liberators and escorting Thunderbolt fighters knocked 142 German fighters out of the sky in grueling battles over the target area.

Thirty American bombers and three fighters were lost.

The chief objectives of the American attack on Bremen included the Weser aircraft factory which produces Stuka dive-bombers and the Deschimag shipbuilding yards.

Japs Take Pasting Meanwhile it appeared that the latest announced American naval victory over Hirohito's warships was accomplished almost "hands down."

A Japanese imperial headquarters communique, claiming the "successful transfer" of the enemy garrisons from the Solomon Islands of Kolombangara and Vella Lavella, said the evacuations were carried out "almost without interference" from United States forces.

Yet, it was known that American surface vessels sank a Jap cruiser and two destroyers, as well as damaged two other destroyers north of Vella Lavella island. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in a communique from his Southwest Pacific headquarters, announced the victory which was accomplished with only "moderate" Jap losses.

The Jap communique, reported by Domei in a broadcast heard by the FCC, failed to mention loss of these vessels.

Soviet armies surged steadily forward today along the vast Russian front and beat down repeated Nazi counter-attacks to widen newly-won bridgeheads on the west bank of the strategic Dnieper river.

The Soviet high command reported more than 6,000 Germans were slain in battle actions extending from the middle reaches of the central front to the Taman peninsula in the West Caucasus.

(An unsubstantiated report from Stockholm said that the spearhead of the Russian army driving westward from the Velikie Luki area was now within 10 miles of the former Latvian border.)

Heaviest fighting was reported around the Red Army bridgeheads on the Dnieper where the Germans battled furiously to stem the mounting threat against their base at Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

The Russians beat back the enemy counter-thrusts and continued to enlarge their new operational bases, an official communique said.

DIMOUT RULES RELAXED ALONG PACIFIC COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—Liberalized dimout regulations for the Pacific coast, relaxing restrictions on most types of lighting and creation of three new zones were announced today by Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, head of the Western Defense Command.

The regulations affect California, Washington and Oregon and become effective at midnight tonight. They modify many restrictions imposed by the western defense proclamation of October 10, 1942 and lift others entirely.

In general, the new regulations make the following changes:

1.—All restrictions are removed from the traffic signals in all areas.

2.—Full headlights are permitted in all areas excepting those visible from the sea. In areas visible from the sea, headlights may be operated on depressed beam with full candlepower instead of on parking beams as before.

3.—Back areas are permitted unshielded outdoor lights up to 100 watts.

4.—Shielded recreational lights are permitted up to 30-foot candlepower except in areas three miles or less from the sea.

BUCKS TO FACE HEAVY ODDS IN TILT AT LAKES

COLUMBUS, Oct. 9.—A youthful civilian Ohio State football team, playing on hostile territory for the first time this season, tangles with a powerful Great Lakes contingent in Chicago today.

The Bucks, in spite of their improved showing against Missouri last Saturday, are not conceded much chance to stop such stalwarts as Steve Lach, Steve Juzwik and Buist Warren.

Lach, former Duke All-American and Chicago Cardinal professional, is firmly established as the number one offensive threat for the Bluejackets. The 200-pound veteran scored two touchdowns against Pittsburgh last Saturday within one minute in the first period, running 14 and 65 yards the first two times he handled the pigskin.

Juzwik is the former Notre Dame sensation whose two specialties are pass-snagging and punt runbacks. The Lach to Juzwik combination is a potent one and is always dangerous especially to teams weak on pass defense.

Buist Warren bowled over opponents at Tennessee and he is as fine a deceptive passer as you would want to see. To date he has a 60-yard punt average in four games.

With the Bluejackets running from a single wing power-plus-passing attack, the Bucks, weak on pass defense, are expected to have a very warm and uncomfortable stay in Chicago.

Shells—Plenty and Quick

American arsenals and powder factories have manufactured more than 200 million rounds of artillery ammunition to use against the Germans and the Japs. Some of these shells fired from trench mortars are fired at the rate of 35 per minute and cost upward from $19 each. That means a lot of War Bond buying for each and every one of us. Figure it out yourself. Buy War Bonds.

Trench mortar and howitzer shells are in the medium and small category which means that Uncle Sam's bill for shells alone is approaching staggering heights.

in eastern Europe and the Balkans in return for a separate peace.

Germany's position in the war from the long-range point of view is now considered to be desperate.

Highly qualified American diplomatic observers think the Germans must realize they cannot win the war; that their only hope of avoiding complete defeat is to split the Allies and strive for a compromise stalemate peace settlement.

Withdrawal of the German armies in Russia to the Dnieper line is seen as paving the way for the peace offensive. Diplomatic and official Washington view the German retreat as unquestionably having a political as well as military purpose.

While the withdrawal undoubtedly has been forced by the pressure of the Soviet counter-offensive, official observers point out it has been an organized retreat and not a rout. There has been no large-scale annihilation of the German armies.

Therefore, it is believed the Germans are deliberately withdrawing both for the purpose of shortening their lines to meet the danger of an Anglo-American invasion in the West and to seek a separate peace with Russia.

As a preliminary to the peace offensive, the Nazis are thought to be trying to frighten the Russians with the threat that Germany will make peace with the United States and Great Britain if Moscow rejects the overtures. The Japanese ambassador in Moscow first started this rumor some weeks ago.

HECTIC CAREER OF ALEXANDER ABOUT TO END

COLUMBUS, Oct. 9.—The brief and hectic reign of Acting Democratic Mayor Arvin Alexander will come to an end with the arrival of Mayor Green, who is scheduled to return to Columbus sometime today.

Alexander brought the vice feud, raging in the city departments during Green's absence, to a head yesterday when he ordered Safety Director Roy B. Weed to suspend Police Chief Otto Kaffits for "failure to enforce the gambling laws." Kaffits however remained at his post because Weed was out of town and could not be reached to be served the order.

Alexander, voted president of city council Monday night, automatically became acting mayor when Green took a short leave of absence. One of his first acts was to order a police drive on gambling and vice. Although the police vice squad said it visited known gambling places and bingo halls, no evidence of gambling was uncovered, squaddies said. Alexander's order suspending Kaffits came after a meeting he held with a group of ministers.

The order instructed the safety director to file charges with the civil service commission and to give a copy to Chief Kaffits. Meanwhile, Col. Alfred Ballin, Republican candidate for city council, charged Alexander with lack of good faith.

"Councilman Arvin J. Alexander, Democrat, up for reelection knows that his sudden outburst for pious enforcement of the gambling law is but a smokescreen to hide the lax law enforcement of Sheriff Jack Sandusky, Democratic mayoralty candidate," Ballin asserted.

Today local political figures awaited Mayor Green's return to office to see what action he would take in the controversy.

KINGSTON

A group of fifty-two Camp Fire girls and Boy Scouts gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Graves on Friday evening to help them celebrate their third wedding anniversary. Mr. Graves is scout master and Mrs. Graves is the adviser for the Camp Fire girls. Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hill, Rev. and Mrs. L. V. Bauguess, Mrs. Claude Ortmann, Mrs. Fred Orr and Mrs. Charles Fox were present to help the children make it a complete surprise. The couple were blindfolded and led into the dining room where the group had assembled. The table was centered with a three tier wedding cake, a gift from the group. A covered dish supper was enjoyed by all at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. Bauguess gave appropriate comments on the couple's past activity of their work with the boys and girls. In connection with the pot-luck supper the children belted the couple and gave them a motor trip through the town.

Mrs. Willard England and small son was brought to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell England, north of Kingston, in Hill's ambulance from Berger hospital, Circleville, on Saturday afternoon.

JOHN L. STUCKEY SERIOUSLY HURT FIGHTING HUNS

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Stuckey, 518 East Mound street, have been informed by the War department that their son, Corporal John L. Stuckey, has been wounded seriously in action. The youth has been fighting in the North African theatre which includes Sicily and southern Italy.

Date of young Stuckey's injury was reported as September 13, a dark date for the American Fifth Army at Salerno. Whether Stuckey was with the Fifth Army is not certain, but his parents believe he was serving under General Mark Clark. It was on that date that the German's declared Clark's army was being evacuated from Salerno, and British spokesmen said Salerno was "another Gallipoli," recalling a British World War I disaster.

The Stuckeys have had no word from their son, their only information being the War department telegram which said he had been seriously hurt.

Young Stuckey, who formerly lived in Pickaway township, was drafted February 19, 1942. He is 23, born December 16, 1919. He and his parents lived until recently in Pickaway township.

ties that there was practically no change. Representatives of the price control agency contended that the board's living cost index was not broad enough in its coverage to give the entire picture. OPA officials have been aiming at a 2.3 reduction in the cost of living by next month. Their statistics showed minor decreases in July and August.

These developments came amidst an outright congressional revolt against the administration's proposed one billion dollar subsidy program to roll back prices and hold the line against inflation.

Chairman Steagall (D) Ala., of the house banking committee charged that OPA's subsidy program used as a means of rolling back prices was in direct violation of the "intent of congress."

Opposition from farm organizations also continued. National Grange Master Albert S. Goss flatly told President Roosevelt that the "hold-the-line" order and price ceiling-subsidy program is "unsound and dangerous."

Goss, in a letter to Mr. Roosevelt charged that since the hold-the-line order was placed into effect 13 months ago, the cost of living has advanced five points, retail food prices 10 points, labor costs 16 points, labor's individual "take home pay" 20 points, corporation earnings hit an almost all-time high and the inflationary gap has increased at least twenty billion dollars.

Informed sources said that Sen. Byrd (D) Va., famed apple grower, and two Republican congressmen from Washington, Holmes and Horan, were members of the committee which protested first to OPA on the original 9-10 cent ceilings. The higher maximums finally decreed become effective October 22.

The protest to OPA and then to Vinson availed nothing at first, it was said. After a meeting with Food Administrator Marvin Jones, however, the protestants obtained results and Vinson ordered the higher prices.

FRIENDS TURN ON FOR AMID STRIKE THREATS

Unions, Like Industry, Fed Up With Overlapping Power And Jealousies

Atherton told the labor leaders to their faces that strikes during wartime comprised treason. He said that something was "haywire" in the house of labor because of the large number of strikes, warned that strikes were giving all of labor a black eye.

Green retorted immediately that labor had kept its no-strike pledge 99.9 percent perfect. He pointed out that one steel company sold defective armor plate to the government; that one concern delivered inferior wire for war purposes; but, he said, labor was not denouncing industry as a whole because of such instances.

"I venture to say," he declared, "that there are sinners in the American Legion."

Green uttered a ringing defense of labor's wartime record. His friends said that it was the greatest speech he ever delivered in the 19 years he had been AFL president. Labor leaders claimed he had more than answered Atherton's accusations. But one of Atherton's remarks still held and indictment of labor. It was:

"If it is treason for the man at the front to refuse to use his gun, then, too, it should be treason for any person fortunate enough to be here on the home front to do things that keep him (the soldier) from getting that gun."

FBI AGENT TO PROBE CASE OF HAROLD DUFORE

Police Chief W. F. McCrady said Saturday that the Federal Bureau of investigation has notified him that a representative will be here in a few days to investigate the case of Private Harold Dufore, 23, absent without leave from the army and held in county jail under $1,000 bond on an auto theft charge.

Dufore was nabbed in Circleville with a stolen car, and during questioning admitted driving the Herbert Leist automobile to Ashland, Ky., where he stole another automobile. In all, Dufore has confessed theft of four cars. Miss Velda Davis, 24, alias Velda Dufore, is also under arrest for investigation in the case.

The chief said he had not been informed concerning what charge the FBI may have against Dufore, although he has confessed violation of the federal Dyer act, transporting a stolen car from one state to another.

Dufore tried to dig his way out of the city jail Thursday. He was transferred that day to the county jail.

The youth has been absent from Goldsboro, S. C. army station since July 6.

Mrs. Flatter's petition said that she had been unable to obtain release of her daughter. Dr. Kirk told the court that the matter had been cleared up without appearing in court for hearing.

WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS ACTIVITY TO BE EXPLAINED

Circleville chapter of the Business and Professional Women's club is sponsoring a public meeting next Thursday evening in the clubrooms in Masonic temple for Circleville mothers, their daughters, members of the clergy and members of other organizations at which time the story of the Women's Army Corps will be told by First Lieutenant Ruth A. Shaver. Miss Shaver is liaison officer for Ohio in the WAC organization.

The meeting is being planned through cooperation of the Business Women and Fred C. Clark, who heads Mayor Ben Gordon's WAC recruiting organization. The session will begin at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Clark said Saturday in announcing the meeting that much false propaganda has been circulated in recent months against the Women's Army Corps. He said the meeting is being held to discount some of the stories circulated by subversive persons and organizations.

Business Women's club plans to make an effort to have a large crowd at the meeting since Lieutenant Shaver is expected to have an interesting story of the WACs and their work.

YANKS POISED TO BLAST JAPS

Two other enemy naval forces were routed from the scene of action, indicating that the enemy suffered an important setback in his attempts to evacuate the Kolombangara force which once was believed to number 10,000 Japs.

American headquarters at Pearl Harbor remained silent on the Japanese broadcast which stated that a U. S. naval task force had struck for the second time against enemy-held Wake island, 2,000 miles west of Hawaii.

The Japanese broadcast stated that enemy army and navy units repelled the latest assault on Wake.

Ever since the daring sea-air assault on Marcus island, only 1,000 miles from Tokyo, there has been no doubt that the U. S. Pacific fleet has been seeking a showdown battle with what remains of the enemy's once-powerful navy.

Another Tokyo broadcast, referring to the attack on Wake island, meanwhile, warned the Japanese people that "this can be surmised to be a concrete manifestation of a frontal sea attack that is to be started by the enemy against the Japanese mainland itself."

The assault or assaults on Wake, coupled with continued successes in the Solomons indicated that American forces now are in a position to execute a "squeeze play" against important Japanese positions in the Southwest and Central Pacific areas.

Successes in the Solomons paved the way for new blows against Japanese positions in the Northern Solomons and also against Rabaul, the main enemy base in the Southwest Pacific.

Mrs. Grant is survived by one brother, Clarence Johnson, of Columbus.

The services will be Monday at 2:30 at the Second Baptist church. Burial in charge of the Deffenbaugh funeral home will be in Forest cemetery. The body will be taken to the funeral home Sunday afternoon and to the church Monday at 10:30 a. m.

SOLONS CLAIM MISMANAGING OF LEND-LEASE

OWI Also Draws Fire In Report On World Tour By Five Senators

Sen. Albert B. Chandler (D) Ky., made a strong plea to make the Pacific war the major American front, while Brewster devoted most of his time to a discussion of lend-lease and the OWI.

Five senators, it was disclosed, heard witnesses while abroad and sent back a record. The senate Truman committee already has brought about some charges in lend-lease and the OWI.

With the OWI now asking congress for five million dollars more for foreign propaganda, Brewster said the request would be thoroughly investigated. He reported newsmen in North Africa feared that the OWI would take over their work.

He disclosed OWI had sent 100 persons into India to teach the Indians the American way of life. "I don't know what they expect to accomplish," he said. "All I can see is that it might bring on a revolution."

Lack Coordination

Brewster declared that his outstanding impression of the trip was "the lack of coordination and lack of an overall American policy."

He said that foreign countries have all the better of propaganda. From Newfoundland around the world to Hawaii he said he found a complete black-out of news presenting the American viewpoint, while British agencies presented their viewpoint.

While some senators complained because newspapers printed detailed reports of the executive sessions, and called attention to the rule of expulsion for senators divulging information given in executive sessions, it appeared that no action would be taken.

Some senators said the entire record should be made public contending that no military secrets were disclosed.

Makes Impression

Chandler believed that he had made an impression in his plea that Gen. MacArthur be supported in his drive against the Japs.

Brewster said he thought the senate is deeply concerned. He expressed pleasure with the reception of reports given by the group of five senators and said, "we all reached substantially the same conclusions."

Sens. Mead (D) N. Y., Russell (D) Ga., and Brewster all told the senate in the secret session that Gen. MacArthur would be saved 1,000,000 casualties if Russia gave the Allies Asiatic bases.

Some senators reported that the three did not question Lodge's authority, but insisted that his statement was exaggerated and made on the basis of a certainty that the bases in Russia could be held. The three senators characterized the statement as unwise.

Shells—Plenty and Quick

American arsenals and powder factories have manufactured more than 200 million rounds of artillery ammunition to use against the Germans and the Japs. Some of these shells fired from trench mortars are fired at the rate of 35 per minute and cost upward from $19 each. That means a lot of War Bond buying for each and every one of us. Figure it out yourself. Buy War Bonds.

in eastern Europe and the Balkans in return for a separate peace.

Germany's position in the war from the long-range point of view is now considered to be desperate.

Highly qualified American diplomatic observers think the Germans must realize they cannot win the war; that their only hope of avoiding complete defeat is to split the Allies and strive for a compromise stalemate peace settlement.

Withdrawal of the German armies in Russia to the Dnieper line is seen as paving the way for the peace offensive. Diplomatic and official Washington view the German retreat as unquestionably having a political as well as military purpose.

While the withdrawal undoubtedly has been forced by the pressure of the Soviet counter-offensive, official observers point out it has been an organized retreat and not a rout. There has been no large-scale annihilation of the German armies.

Therefore, it is believed the Germans are deliberately withdrawing a both for the purpose of shortening their lines to meet the danger of an Anglo-American invasion in the West and to seek a separate peace with Russia.

As a preliminary to the peace offensive, the Nazis are thought to be trying to frighten the Russians with the threat that Germany will make peace with the United States and Great Britain if Moscow rejects the overtures. The Japanese ambassador in Moscow first started this rumor some weeks ago.

HECTIC CAREER OF ALEXANDER ABOUT TO END

COLUMBUS, Oct. 9—The brief and hectic reign of Acting Democratic Mayor Arvin Alexander will come to an end with the arrival of Mayor Green, who is scheduled to return to Columbus sometime today.

Alexander brought the vice feud, raging in the city departments during Green's absence, to a head yesterday when he ordered Safety Director Roy B. Weed to suspend Police Chief Otto Kaffits for "failure to enforce the gambling laws." Kaffits however remained at his post because Weed was out of town and could not be reached to be served the order.

Alexander, voted president of city council Monday night, automatically became acting mayor when Green took a short leave of absence. One of his first acts was to order a police drive on gambling and vice. Although the police vice squad said it visited known gambling places and bingo halls, no evidence of gambling was uncovered, squadsmen said.

Alexander's order suspending Kaffits came after a meeting he held with a group of ministers.

The order instructed the safety director to file charges with the civil service commission and to give a copy to Chief Kaffits.

Meanwhile, Col. Alfred Ballin, Republican candidate for city council, charged Alexander with lack of good faith.

"Councilman Arvin J. Alexander, Democrat, up for reelection knows that his sudden outburst for pious enforcement of the gambling law is but a smokescreen to hide the lax law enforcement of Sheriff Jake Sandusky, Democratic mayoralty candidate," Ballin asserted.

Today local political figures awaited Mayor Green's return to office to see what action he would take in the controversy.

KINGSTON

A group of fifty-two Camp Fire girls and Boy Scouts gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Graves on Friday evening to help them celebrate their third wedding anniversary. Mr. Graves is scout master and Mrs. Graves is the adviser for the Camp Fire girls. Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hill, Rev. and Mrs. L. V. Bauguess, Mrs. Claude Ortman, Mrs. Fred Orr and Mrs. Charles Fox were present to help the children make it a complete surprise. The couple were blindfolded and led into the dining room where the group had assembled. The table was centered with a three tier wedding cake, a gift from the group. A covered dish supper was enjoyed by all at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. Bauguess gave appropriate comments on the couple's past activity of their work with the boys and girls.

In connection with the pot-luck supper the children belted the couple and gave them a motor trip through the town.

Kingston Mrs. Willard England and small son was brought to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell England, north of Kingston, in Hill's ambulance from Berger hospital, Circleville, on Saturday afternoon.

JOHN L. STUCKEY SERIOUSLY HURT FIGHTING HUNS

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Stuckey, 518 East Mound street, have been informed by the War department that their son, Corporal John L. Stuckey, has been wounded seriously in action. The youth has been fighting in the North African theatre which includes Sicily and southern Italy.

Date of young Stuckey's injury was reported as September 13, a dark date for the American Fifth Army at Salerno. Whether Stuckey was with the Fifth Army is not certain, but his parents believe he was serving under General Mark Clark. It was on that date that the German's declared Clark's army was being evacuated from Salerno, and British spokesmen said Salerno was "another Gallipoli," recalling a British World War I disaster.

The Stuckeys have had no word from their son, their only information being the War department telegram which said he had been seriously hurt.

Young Stuckey, who formerly lived in Pickaway township, was drafted February 19, 1942. He is 23, born December, 16, 1919. He and his parents lived until recently in Pickaway township.

APPLE HOIST PROVES COSTLY

ties that there was practically no change.

Representatives of the price control agency contended that the board's living cost index was not broad enough in its coverage to give the entire picture. OPA officials have been aiming at a 2.3 reduction in the cost of living by next month. Their statistics showed minor decreases in July and August.

These developments came amidst an outright congressional revolt against the administration's proposed one billion dollar subsidy program to roll back prices and hold the line against inflation.

Chairman Steagall (D) Ala., of the house banking committee charged that OPA's subsidy program used as a means of rolling back prices was in direct violation of the "intent of congress."

Opposition from farm organizations also continued. National Grange Master Albert S. Goss flatly told President Roosevelt that the "hold-the-line" order and price ceiling-subsidy program is "unsound and dangerous."

Goss, in a letter to Mr. Roosevelt charged that since the hold-the-line order was placed into effect 13 months ago, the cost of living has advanced five points, retail food prices 10 points, labor costs 16 points, labor's individual "take home pay" 20 points, corporation earnings hit an almost all-time high and the inflationary gap has increased at least twenty billion dollars.

Informed sources said that Sen. Byrd (D) Va., famed apple grower, and two Republican congressmen from Washington, Holmes and Horan, were members of the committee which protested first to OPA on the original 9-10 cent ceilings. The higher maximums finally decreed become effective October 22.

The protest to OPA and then to Vinson availed nothing at first, it was said. After a meeting with Food Administrator Marvin Jones, however, the protesters obtained results and Vinson ordered the higher prices.

HIT-SKIPPER SOUGHT

Sherriff's office is hunting the driver of a hit-skip automobile which damaged the parked car of James Houser, Monroe township. The Houser car was parked in front of his home Friday when the hit-skipper crashed into it. Houser told Deputy Vern Pontious that the hit and run auto carried four men and did not have any license plates on the rear.

FRIENDS TURN ON FOR AMID STRIKE THREATS

AFL President William Green and Warren H. Atherton, the latter the new national commander of the American Legion.

Atherton told the labor leaders to their faces that strikes during wartime comprised treason. He said that something was "haywire" in the house of labor because of the large number of strikes, warned that strikes were giving all of labor a black eye.

Green retorted immediately that labor had kept its no-strike pledge 99.9 percent perfect. He pointed out that one steel company sold defective armor plate to the government; that one concern delivered inferior wire for war purposes; but, he said, labor was not denouncing industry as a whole because of such instances.

"I venture to say," he declared, "that there are sinners in the American Legion."

Green uttered a ringing defense of labor's wartime record. His friends said that it was the greatest speech he ever delivered in the 19 years he had been AFL president. Labor leaders claimed he had more than answered Atherton's accusations. But one of Atherton's remarks still held and indictment of labor. It was:

"If it is treason for the man at the front to refuse to use his gun, then, too, it should be treason for any person fortunate enough to be here on the home front to do things that keep him (the soldier) from getting that gun."

FBI AGENT TO PROBE CASE OF HAROLD DUFORE

Police Chief W. F. McCrady said Saturday that the Federal Bureau of investigation has notified him that a representative will be here in a few days to investigate the case of Private Harold Dufore, 23, absent without leave from the army and held in county jail under $1,000 bond on an auto theft charge.

Dufore was nabbed in Circleville with a stolen car, and during questioning admitted driving the Herbert Leist automobile to Ashland, Ky., where he stole another automobile. In all, Dufore has confessed theft of four cars. Miss Velda Davis, 24, alias Velda Dufore, is also under arrest for investigation in the case.

The chief said he had not been informed concerning what charge the FBI may have against Dufore, although he has confessed violation of the federal Dyer act, transporting a stolen car from one state to another.

Dufore tried to dig his way out of the city jail Thursday. He was transferred that day to the county jail.

The youth has been absent from Goldsboro, S. C. army station since July 6.

ORIENT TO FREE GIRL, MOTHER ABANDONS SUIT

Habeas corpus proceedings scheduled for hearing Friday afternoon before Judge Meeker Terwilliger over custody of Dorothy May Flatter, a patient at the Orient institution for feeble-minded, failed to materialize. Dr. C. C. Kirk, superintendent of the state institution informed the judge that he had sent a telegram to the girl's mother, Mrs. Harriett Flatter of Dayton, that she could have custody if she would call at the institution for her child.

Mrs. Flatter's petition said that she had been unable to obtain release of her daughter. Dr. Kirk told the court that the matter had been cleared up without appearing in court for hearing.

WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS ACTIVITY TO BE EXPLAINED

Circleville chapter of the Business and Professional Women's club is sponsoring a public meeting next Thursday evening in the clubrooms in Masonic temple for Circleville mothers, their daughters, members of the clergy and members of other organizations at which time the story of the Women's Army Corps will be told by First Lieutenant Ruth A. Shaver, Miss Shaver is liaison officer for Ohio in the WAC organization.

The meeting is being planned through cooperation of the Business Women and Fred C. Clark, who heads Mayor Ben Gordon's WAC recruiting organization. The session will begin at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Clark said Saturday in announcing the meeting that much false propaganda has been circulated in recent months against the Women's Army Corps. He said the meeting is being held to discount some of the stories circulated by subversive persons and organizations.

Business Women's club plans to make an effort to have a large crowd at the meeting since Lieutenant Shaver is expected to have an interesting story of the WACs and their work.

destroyers were reported sunk and two other destroyers damaged.

Two other enemy naval forces were routed from the scene of action, indicating that the enemy suffered an important setback in his attempts to evacuate the Kolombangara force which once was believed to number 10,000 Japs.

American headquarters at Pearl Harbor remained silent on the Japanese broadcast which stated that a U. S. naval task force had struck for the second time against enemy-held Wake island, 2,000 miles west of Hawaii.

The Japanese broadcast stated that enemy army and navy units repelled the latest assault on Wake.

Ever since the daring sea-air assault on Marcus island, only 1,000 miles from Tokyo, there has been no doubt that the U. S. Pacific fleet has been seeking a showdown battle with what remains of the enemy's once-powerful navy.

Another Tokyo broadcast, referring to the attack on Wake island, meanwhile, warned the Japanese people that "this can be surmised to be a concrete manifestation of a frontal sea attack that is to be started by the enemy against the Japanese mainland itself."

The assault or assaults on Wake, coupled with continued successes in the Solomons indicated that American forces now are in a position to execute a "squeeze play" against important Japanese positions in the Southwest and Central Pacific areas.

Successes in the Solomons paved the way for new blows against Japanese positions in the Northern Solomons and also against Rabaul, the main enemy base in the Southwest Pacific.

MRS. BESSIE GRANT DIES AT PICKAWAY HOME

Mrs. Bessie Grant, 48, died Saturday at the Pickaway county Home after a long illness. She was the daughter of the late Elijah and Rosa Johnson and was removed to the institution from the family home, 621 Maplewood avenue, about the time of her father's death, August 31.

Mrs. Grant is survived by one brother, Clarence Johnson, of Columbus.

The services will be Monday at 2:30 at the Second Baptist church. Burial in charge of the Deffenbaugh funeral home will be in Forest cemetery. The body will be taken to the funeral home Sunday afternoon and to the church Monday at 10:30 a. m.

SOLON'S CLAIM MISMANAGING OF LEND-LEASE

OWI Also Draws Fire In Report On World Tour By Five Senators

ed places would be taken over by the British.

Sen. Albert B. Chandler (D) Ky., made a strong plea to make the Pacific war the major American front, while Brewster devoted most of his time to a discussion of lend-lease and the OWI.

Five senators, it was disclosed, heard witnesses while abroad and sent back a record. The senate Truman committee already has brought about some charges in lend-lease and the OWI.

With the OWI now asking congress for five million dollars more for foreign propaganda, Brewster said the request would be thoroughly investigated. He reported newsmen in North Africa feared that the OWI would take over their work.

He disclosed OWI had sent 100 persons into India to teach the Indians the American way of life.

"I don't know what they expect to accomplish," he said. "All I can see is that it might bring on a revolution."

Lack Coordination

Brewster declared that his outstanding impression of the trip was "the lack of coordination and lack of an overall American policy."

He said that foreign countries have all the better of propaganda. From Newfoundland around the world to Hawaii he said he found a complete black-out of news presenting the American viewpoint, while British agencies presented their viewpoint.

While some senators complained because newspapers printed detailed reports of the executive sessions, and called attention to the rule of expulsion for senators divulging information given in executive sessions, it appeared that no action would be taken.

Some senators said the entire record should be made public contending that no military secrets were disclosed.

Makes Impression

Chandler believed that he had made an impression in his plea that Gen. MacArthur be supported in his drive against the Japs.

Brewster said he thought the senate is deeply concerned. He expressed pleasure with the reception of reports given by the group of five senators and said, "we all reached substantially the same conclusions."

Sens. Mead (D) N. Y., Russell (D) Ga., and Brewster all told the senate in the secret session that Sen. Lodge (R) of Mass., erred in quoting high authority as saying 1,000,000 casualties if Russia gave the Allies Asiatic bases.

Some senators reported that the three did not question Lodge's authority, but insisted that his statement was exaggerated and made on the basis of a certainty that the bases in Russia could be held. The three senators characterized the statement as untrue.

ITINERANT NABBED

A. E. Richardson, 64, a Chillicothe scissors sharpener, was held in city jail Saturday for hearing on a charge of disturbing the peace. Richardson was picked up at 6:20 p. m. Friday after housewives on North Scioto street said he was begging from house to house.

BUSINESS PATRIOTS

It takes a war to bring able soldiers to the front, and likewise to put big business captains where they can do the most good.

Men like Harriman and Stettinius and Nelson and many others of their breed seem more available for government service in recent years than ever before. They have been somewhat handicapped by class prejudice. Slowly, however, the fact is recognized that here are gifted men who would rather serve their country for a few thousand dollars a year, or for nothing at all, than work for the selfish accumulation of useless millions.

At the same time, it seems as if many other young Americans are arising, who never suffered from a millionaire complex, and seem to take public service less as a novelty and more as a matter of course. This has long been the British attitude, but is comparatively new in America.

And those who follow this trend will probably not lose much financially in the long run. Fortunes will hardly be made in the future as they have been in the past. Immense public debts and the means of handling them and safeguarding national solvency will take the profits out of big business.

SAVING THINGS

THE commonest things sometimes become the most valuable. This truth collectors have known for a long time. Recently Jake Zeitlin, a California bookseller, has brought home to non-collectors the advisability of saving some of the ordinary objects likely to disappear.

With election coming in many states, it is worth remembering that political handbills and pamphlets will some day be worth having. Perhaps 25 years from now, Zeitlin recalls Upton Sinclair's race for governor of California a few years ago. A Sinclair weekly leaflet, "Epic News," was distributed by hundreds of thousands during the campaign. When a set was wanted later, no Californian, neither Zeitlin nor Sinclair himself, had thought to save it.

War posters will be worth money some day, especially if kept in a complete set. Or if anyone had, say, the "Saturday Evening Post" without a break from the very start, he might hope to get as much as $12,000.

Not every piece of printed matter, of course, is worth saving. Historians, librarians and other collectors can often advise as to what to save. With or without advice, it pays to keep the eyes open and the imagination working.

The Germans, operating a shell game, naturally make a shell of every city they enter.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

GERMAN MORALE CRACKING?

WASHINGTON — Military reports that have leaked out of Germany in the last two or three weeks indicate quite definitely that Nazi morale is cracking. These reports, through channels which cannot be revealed, were quite definite even before Propaganda Minister Goebbels delivered his give-away speech warning that saboteurs on the home front would be beheaded.

Reports also are definite that the German army no longer has the reserves, no longer has the fighting backbone for a long war. Resentment against Hitler boils beneath the surface in the German army. German soldiers will keep on fighting, and are toughly-trained, desperately-hitting adversaries. But their heart isn't in it anymore.

All these factors, plus powerful wall-laps by the allies, have created an atmosphere in which anything might happen. It is an atmosphere not unlike that which existed in the Autumn of 1918. There are those in high places who think the war in Europe might be over anytime this Winter, depending entirely on Nazi morale.

But in Asia the war is moving at a snail's pace. In Burma, though, the rains are already over, nothing has happened. Many observers think that nothing will happen until late this Winter, and that the real drive through Burma toward South China will be reserved for a year from now—the Fall of 1944.

OPA GOES TO OMAHA

American Legionnaires returning from the national convention in Omaha have a lot more money in their pockets because of OPA and John A. Fath. Fath is both a Legionnaire and an OPA official, and he was determined that the boys should pay only ceiling prices for their hotel rooms, and for the ice, ginger ale and other things that make Legion conventions what they are.

Fath attended the New Jersey state American Legion convention last August in Newark, where he found that the boys were being charged a dollar for a quart of room-service ginger ale, and another dollar for a bucket of ice. He also found that the double room he occupied, normally priced at $9, had been upped to $12 for the convention.

Pulling out his OPA credentials, Fath forced hotels and restaurants to knock their prices down.

Two weeks later, Fath hopped a plane for Omaha, and, working with the district OPA office, walked in on hotel and restaurant proprietors.

"You have filed your ceiling prices of last April," Fath warned, "and when the boys come here for the convention, you can choose between two things — either you stick to those prices, or we move in on you for violation of price ceilings."

Result was that Legionnaires got a soup-to-nuts steak dinner for $1.25, and room-service ginger ale or sparkling water for forty cents—with ice thrown in free.

Incidentally, Fath—who is no shrinking violet—got a resolution passed which expressed the Legion's appreciation for OPA's help, and thus softened the reputation of OPA among veterans throughout the country.

Modern Principles Of Transfusion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

NOWADAYS with nearly all the adult population on either the giving or receiving end of blood transfusion, let us review the fundamental principles involved.

The idea of blood transfusion is a very old one. As why shouldn't it be? What is more natural than to think of the benefits of giving a sick man the blood of a sound, young, healthy man? But the early experimenters ran into technical difficulties that were never solved until late in the nineteenth century.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Samuel Pepys, in his diary, records an experiment done at the Royal Society in which the blood of a sheep was transfused into the body of a man, and the man afterwards bleated when he talked. It is as well for his veracity that he doesn't say he saw this: it speaks for his gullibility. The blood of one species of animal cannot be transfused into another: it is so incompatible that death follows instantly. And that was one of the technical difficulties the early transfusers did not understand.

Blood Coagulation

Blood coagulation was another of the technical difficulties the early students could not overcome. It was solved when the nature of blood coagulation was understood, and anti-coagulants which could be added to blood and prevent coagulation, such as sodium citrate, were discovered.

But the most important technical difficulty was overcome when it was found that people had different types of blood. If the blood of a person of incompatible type is given to another, one of two unfavorable things may happen—the red blood cells of the recipient will agglutinate or gather together in clumps, or they may dissolve.

These phenomena are called agglutination and hemolysis. In practice it has not been found that hemolysis is of serious enough consequence to be considered, but agglutination is. Type A blood will agglutinate the red cells of type B, and B will agglutinate the cells of A persons, so that it is a bad combination. There are four types: O (43 per cent) of the general population; A (40 per cent); B (7 per cent); and AB (10 per cent). Type O persons are universal donors; AB persons universal recipients.

Use of Plasma

A great advance in technique of late years has been the use of blood plasma. Instead of whole blood, the plasma is the protein of the blood with the cells removed. It can be dried and stored in blood banks. A small bottle of water to dilute it, a 50-c.c. syringe, all of which can be carried in a doctor's pocket, will give a wounded soldier the equivalent of a pint of blood.

The great usefulness of transfusion is in cases of hemorrhage, shock and burns. The patient who has lost blood in hemorrhage will go into shock because the circulation has to have a certain volume of blood to work with. For this purpose plasma is as good as whole blood. The burned patient loses enormous amounts of protein from the blood. And here, too, the plasma is the exact substitute.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. R. W.: Is it safe to take vitamin pills unless ordered to do so by the doctor? Is it safe to use saccharin for sweetening food in order to stretch the sugar supply?

Answer: Your first question is of such universal interest that I am devoting a column to it. Saccharin has been proved by numerous experiments to be absolutely harmless. Of course, it has no nourishment and now that the sugar supply has eased those on the thin side should get as much sugar as they can.

V. P.: I have a mole on my face, am 23 years old. I am afraid it is growing larger. I would like to have it removed because hair is growing in it. Is this dangerous?

Answer: No. Dermatologists have many methods of removal, depending on what kind of mole it is. Go to any good doctor and have him advise you what dermatologist to go to.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

MEANWHILE Bill Potter was having his troubles. That Alicia Carter woman! Getting her to make up her mind was like nothing else on top side of the earth. Conclude the luck anyway! First she wanted to do this. And then she wanted to do that. One day it was one thing, and the next day it was something else. She was wearing him down, no doubt about it. Time flying, workmen wanting to buy homes of their own, and Alicia Carter seeing back and forth, never quite sure what she ought to do, and always hesitating about taking the advice she kept asking for. Darn women anyway! They were enough to drive a man to his grave long before his time.

Thoughts such as those were churning through his mind now as he drove over to Elmwood. He hadn't told Susan that he was going. He knew she would say something catty, and something catty was certainly something he didn't want to hear. He was beginning to think that Susan's judgment of Alicia had been correct, but darned if he'd give her the satisfaction of telling her so. He hated scenes—and here of late he and Susan had gone through several scenes he'd never thought he would share with Susan, of all people.

So he had gone home to supper a little earlier, telling Susan he had done so because he knew she wanted to get away for the rehearsal. She had looked at him as though she knew perfectly well he was lying, and said, "How sweet of you, Bill." Then the moment supper was over, he had gone back to his office, presumably to work late, but actually to get his car, which was parked out back of the building. Alicia had telephoned him that afternoon, urging him to come over that evening if he possibly could, as something important had come up which she simply had to discuss with him. He had tried to get out of it, but she had finally gotten her own way by declaring that she was quite sure she had at last decided on what property to sell and what to keep.

"I can't talk to you about it over the telephone," she said.

"Then can't you come to my office tomorrow?" he had asked.

"No, Bill, I can't possibly manage it," she replied. "I've got two long fittings with my dressmaker, and a cocktail party to attend. Besides, it's so much easier to talk business here at my place than at your office—so few interruptions, I mean."

"Okay, I'll be over," he had finally said. "I'll drive over right after supper."

"Why not come straight from the office?" Alicia had suggested. "I'll give you something to eat."

"Thanks, but I DO have a wife, you know, Alicia," he said. "And when she plans a meal she likes me to eat it."

"Very well, come later. But not too late."

And presently Bill was finding out just why Alicia had said "not too late." She had two other people at the house, and she wanted him to make a fourth at bridge. Bill Potter thought, "Gosh, that's Adam North's job, being a fourth at bridge, a fourteenth at dinner, not mine!" Then he got a little angry. Alicia had tricked him, that was it.

He followed her into the house after being introduced to the man and woman on the front porch, since they were all sitting there because of the mildness of the evening.

"Look here, Alicia," he said, "I'm a busy man. I can't spare the time to run for miles to play bridge. I thought it was business you wanted to talk."

"It is," said Alicia. She laid a hand upon his arm. "Don't be angry, Bill, dear—please. That man out there has been trying to sell me some bonds and things, and now that he hears I may sell some of this old Carter property, he's keener than ever for me to invest."

"So what?" said Bill. "What's that to me?"

"I want you to hear him talk, and then advise me what to do with the money."

"But you haven't ever sold the property as yet," said Bill. "Which reminds me, Alicia, that you've got to make up your mind—and right now."

"I don't like to be rushed," said Alicia. "Good Lord, nobody's rushing you! You've been trying to decide for weeks!"

"I know, Bill, but I do so want to do the right thing. I've made so many mistakes during my poor little life," Alicia sighed. "I want to be sure for once that I'll have no regrets."

Bill watched her mix drinks, and thought of the men she had married. He wondered if they were the mistakes she had made. And as for the "poor little life" part of it, he didn't agree with her. Alicia Carter had done pretty well by herself, if anyone should count up and ask him. And as he saw the way she looked at him now and then, with something like invitation in her eyes, he decided that Susan had been right about her. Alicia liked men—and she wanted attention. She was doubtless enjoying keeping him at her beck and call. Well, one thing certain, she wasn't going to go on like that much longer.

"You carry these out, won't you, Bill?" she said, placing four tall glasses upon a tray. "Mr. and Mrs. Royster have never had mint juleps and they're all excited about having their first ones."

Bill took the tray. "Before we join them, Alicia," he said, "I want you to know that unless you make up your mind about this property within 26 hours, the deal's off."

"Why, Bill!" Alicia gasped. "That's not even two days."

"I know it isn't," said Bill. "But don't forget I want to sell homes to workmen while they are able to pay for them—while they need them. Not a year from now or three years from now."

Alicia looked hurt. Then she pouted.

"All right, you old slave driver, you!" she said.

Bill played bridge very badly, and what was worse, he lost a considerable sum. And he was in no condition to lose money, at bridge or any other way. Then, too, the man Royster struck him as being a blowhard. His wife wasn't much better, as she bragged about their home near Baltimore. They talked home near Baltimore, they talked on his bridge, and glared when they were playing a hand and he said anything. Altogether it was a decided flop of an evening. And as the minutes dragged, Bill began to loathe Alicia Carter. She was something of a pain in the neck, so far as he was concerned. And the moment she signed on the dotted line he was going to leap right out of her life.

Presently, when he was dummy and Alicia was playing the hand, he let his thoughts revert to Susan—and to Adam North. He scowled as he visualized Susan hanging around Adam North's cafeteria, without having her hanging around his neck at rehearsals. Just let him find out that Adam North was getting familiar with Susan around the factory—and, boy, there'd be something for Linville to talk about! Adam North would look swell with a couple of shiners, and he, Bill Potter, was certainly the man to hand them out.

The more he thought about the matter, the madder he got, and the worse he played.

He began looking at his watch, wondering if he could possibly get home from Elmwood before Susan got home from rehearsal. He was afraid not, unless Mrs. Platt kept them longer at the high school than she had been doing. It was then that he began praying that the rehearsal would last until far in the morning hours. He hated the idea of sneaking in like a thief—making such an entrance into his own home—and yet he knew that's just what he would do if Susan got home first. If she was asleep he could manage it. If she wasn't he would probably end up by telling a fantastic story about working late at the office.

And it was all Alicia Carter's fault.

BUSINESS PATRIOTS

It takes a war to bring able soldiers to the front, and likewise to put big business captains where they can do the most good.

Men like Harriman and Stettinius and Nelson and many others of their breed seem more available for government service in recent years than ever before. They have been somewhat handicapped by class prejudice. Slowly, however, the fact is recognized that here are gifted men who would rather serve their country for a few thousand dollars a year, or for nothing at all, than work for the selfish accumulation of useless millions.

At the same time, it seems as if many other young Americans are arising, who never suffered from a millionaire complex, and seem to take public service less as a novelty and more as a matter of course. This has long been the British attitude, but is comparatively new in America.

And those who follow this trend will probably not lose much financially in the long run. Fortunes will hardly be made in the future as they have been in the past. Immense public debts and the means of handling them and safeguarding national solvency will take the profits out of big business.

SAVING THINGS

THE commonest things sometimes become the most valuable. This truth collectors have known for a long time. Recently Jake Zeitlin, a California bookseller, has brought home to non-collectors the advisability of saving some of the ordinary objects likely to disappear.

With election coming in many states, it is worth remembering that political handbills and pamphlets will some day be worth having. Perhaps 25 years from now, Zeitlin recalls Upton Sinclair's race for governor of California a few years ago. A Sinclair weekly leaflet, "Epic News," was distributed by hundreds of thousands during the campaign. When a set was wanted later, no Californian, neither Zeitlin nor Sinclair himself, had thought to save it.

War posters will be worth money some day, especially if kept in a complete set. Or if anyone had, say, the "Saturday Evening Post" without a break from the very start, he might hope to get as much as $12,000.

Not every piece of printed matter, of course, is worth saving. Historians, librarians and other collectors can often advise as to what to save. With or without advice, it pays to keep the eyes open and the imagination working.

The Germans, operating a shell game, naturally make a shell of every city they enter.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

GERMAN MORALE CRACKING?

WASHINGTON — Military reports that have leaked out of Germany in the last two or three weeks indicate quite definitely that Nazi morale is cracking. These reports, through channels which cannot be revealed, were quite definite even before Propaganda Minister Goebbels delivered his give-away speech warning that saboteurs on the home front would be beheaded. Reports also are definite that the German army no longer has the reserves, no longer has the fighting backbone for a long war. Resentment against Hitler boils beneath the surface in the German army. German soldiers will keep on fighting, and are toughly-trained, desperately-hitting adversaries. But their heart isn't in it anymore.

All these factors, plus powerful wall-pops by the allies, have created an atmosphere in which anything might happen. It is an atmosphere not unlike that which existed in the Autumn of 1918. There are those in high places who think the war in Europe might be over anytime this Winter, depending entirely on Nazi morale.

But in Asia the war is moving at a snail's pace. In Burma, though, the rains are already over, nothing has happened. Many observers think that nothing will happen until late this Winter, and that the real drive through Burma toward South China will be reserved for a year from now—the Fall of 1944.

OPA GOES TO OMAHA

American Legionnaires returning from the national convention in Omaha have a lot more money in their pockets because of OPA and John A. Fath. Fath is both a Legionnaire and an OPA official, and he was determined that the boys should pay only ceiling prices for their hotel rooms, and for the ice, ginger ale and other things that make Legion conventions what they are.

Fath attended the New Jersey state American Legion convention last August in Newark, where he found that the boys were being charged a dollar for a quart of room-service ginger ale, and another dollar for a bucket of ice. He also found that the double room he occupied, normally priced at $9, had been upped to $12 for the convention.

Pulling out his OPA credentials, Fath forced hotels and restaurants to knock their prices down.

Two weeks later, Fath hopped a plane for Omaha, and, working with the district OPA office, walked in on hotel and restaurant proprietors.

"You have filed your ceiling prices of last April," Fath warned, "and when the boys come here for the convention, you can choose between two things — either you stick to those prices, or we move in on you for violation of price ceilings."

Result was that Legionnaires got a soup-to-nuts steak dinner for $1.25, and room-service ginger ale or sparkling water for forty cents—with ice thrown in free.

Incidentally, Fath—who is no shrinking violet—got a resolution passed which expressed the Legion's appreciation for OPA's help, and thus softened the reputation of OPA among veterans throughout the country.

Modern Principles Of Transfusion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

NOWADAYS with nearly all the adult population on either the giving or receiving end of blood transfusion, let us review the fundamental principles involved. The idea of blood transfusion is a very old one. As why shouldn't it be? What is more natural than to think of the benefits of giving a sick man the blood of a sound, young, healthy man? But the early experimenters ran into technical difficulties that were never solved until late in the nineteenth century.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Samuel Pepys, in his diary, records an experiment done at the Royal Society in which the blood of a sheep was transfused into the body of a man, and the man afterwards bleated when he talked. It is as well for his veracity that he doesn't say he saw this; it speaks for his gullibility. The blood of one species of animal cannot be transfused into another; it is so transfused that death follows instantly. And that was one of the technical difficulties the early transfusers did not understand.

Blood Coagulation

Blood coagulation was another of the technical difficulties the early students could not overcome. It was solved when the nature of blood coagulation was understood, and anti-coagulants which could be added to blood and prevent coagulation, such as sodium citrate, were discovered.

But the most important technical difficulty was overcome when it was found that people had different types of blood. If the blood of a person of incompatible type is given to another, one of two unfavorable things may happen—the red blood cells of the recipient will agglutinate or gather together in clumps, or they may dissolve.

These phenomena are called agglutination and hemolysis. In practice it has not been found that hemolysis is of serious enough consequence to be considered, but agglutination is. Type A blood will agglutinate the red cells of type B, and B will agglutinate the cells of A persons, so that it is a bad combination. There are four types: O (43 per cent) of the general population; A (40 per cent); B (7 per cent); and AB (10 per cent). Type O persons are universal donors; AB persons universal recipients.

Use of Plasma

A great advance in technique of late years has been the use of blood plasma instead of whole blood. Blood plasma is the protein of the blood with the cells removed. It can be dried and stored in blood banks. A small bottle of water to dilute it, a 50-c.c. syringe, all of which can be carried in a doctor's pocket, will give a wounded soldier the equivalent of a pint of blood.

The great usefulness of transfusion is in cases of hemorrhage, shock and burns. The patient who has lost blood in hemorrhage will go into shock because the circulation has to have a certain volume of blood to work with. For this purpose plasma is as good as whole blood. The burned patient loses enormous amounts of protein from the blood. And here, too, the plasma is the exact substitute.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. R. W.: Is it safe to take vitamin pills unless ordered to do so by the doctor? Is it safe to use saccharin for sweetening food in order to stretch the sugar supply?

Answer: Your first question is of such universal interest that I am devoting a column to it. Saccharin has been proved by numerous experiments to be absolutely harmless. Of course, it has no nourishment and now that the sugar supply has eased those on the thin side should get as much sugar as they can.

V. P.: I have a mole on my face, am 23 years old. I am afraid it is growing larger. I would like to have it removed because hair is growing in it. Is this dangerous?

Answer: No. Dermatologists have many methods of removal, depending on what kind of mole it is. Go to any good doctor and have him advise you what dermatologist to go to.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

MEANWHILE Bill Potter was having his troubles. That Alicia Carter woman! Getting her to make up her mind was like nothing else on top side of the earth. Confound the luck anyway! First she wanted to do this. And then she wanted to do that. One day it was one thing, and the next day it was something else. She was wearing him down, no doubt about it. Time flying, workmen wanting to buy homes of their own, and Alicia Carter sea-sawing back and forth, never quite sure what she ought to do, and always hesitating about taking the advice she kept asking for. Darn women anyway! They were enough to drive a man to his grave long before his time.

Thoughts such as those were churning through his mind now as he drove over to Elmwood. He hadn't told Susan that he was going. He knew she would say something catty, and something catty was certainly something he didn't want to hear. He was beginning to think that Susan's judgment of Alicia had been correct, but darned if he'd give her the satisfaction of telling her so. He hated scenes—and here of late he and Susan had gone through several, scenes he had never thought he would share with Susan, of all people.

So he had gone home to supper a little earlier, telling Susan he had done so because he knew she wanted to get away for the rehearsal. She had looked at him as though she knew perfectly well he was lying, and said, "How sweet of you, Bill." Then the moment supper was over, he had gone back to his office, presumably to work late, but actually to get his car, which was parked out back of the building. Alicia had telephoned him that afternoon, urging him to come over that evening if he possibly could, as something important had come up which she simply had to discuss with him. He had tried to get out of it, but she had finally gotten her own way by declaring that she was quite sure she had at last decided on what property to sell and what to keep.

"I can't talk to you about it over the telephone," she said.

"Then can't you come to my office tomorrow?" he had asked. "No, Bill, I can't possibly manage it," she replied. "I've got two long sittings with my dressmaker, and a cocktail party to attend. Besides, it's so much easier to talk business here at my place than at your office—so few interruptions, I mean."

"Okay, I'll be over," he had finally said. "I'll drive over right after supper."

"Why not come straight from the office?" Alicia had suggested. "I'll give you something to eat."

"Thanks, but I DO have a wife, you know, Alicia," he said. "And when she plans a meal she likes me to eat it."

"Very well, come later. But not too late."

Today's Horoscope: Success should be your lot for you have excellent mental powers, sound and practical business judgment, and the personality and ognition and rewards of those in high place and power. There may be some danger of extravagance or over optimism. But best returns should come from conservatism and wise expenditure.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are promised decisive advancement, with varied interests, accumulations and possessions under expansive and secure influence. It is a time for determination, industry and ingenuity and skill of a practical constructive nature, and not through over optimism, extravagance or excess in both financial outlay or physical or mental energies. Use conservatism, thrift and farseeing precautions and outstanding success should be assured, although fast moves in the right direction may be lucrative.

A child born on this day although having energy, initiative and much constructive capacity will as well be industrious, persistent and responsible, achieving enduring success and stability.

For Sunday, October 10

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a dubious one, as far as social, domestic and affectional associations are concerned. It is not a propitious time for personal contacts, especially with those in high station and influence. This want of approbation and friendliness may incite to impulsive outbursts.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of upsets and disturbances, which may prove disintegrating and devastating unless handled with reserve, restraints and according to accepted codes and obligations. This clash and conflict is likely to carry over into domestic or affectional crisis.

A child born on this day may possess exceptional talents and aims, but its tendency to defy ac-

And presently Bill was finding out just why Alicia had said "not too late." She had two other people at the house, and she wanted him to make a fourth at bridge. Bill Potter thought, "Gosh, that's Adam North's job, being a fourth at bridge, a fourteenth at dinner, not mine!" Then he got a little angry. Alicia had tricked him, that was it.

He followed her into the house after being introduced to the man and woman on the front porch, since they were all sitting there because of the mildness of the evening.

"Look here, Alicia," he said, "I'm a busy man. I can't spare the time to run for miles to play bridge. I thought it was business you wanted to talk."

"It is," said Alicia. She laid a hand upon his arm. "Don't be angry, Bill, dear—please. That man out there has been trying to sell me some bonds and things, and now that he hears I may sell some of this old Carter property, he's keener than ever for me to invest."

"So what?" said Bill. "What's that to me?"

"I want you to hear him talk," and then advise me what to do with the money."

"But you haven't even sold the property as yet," said Bill. "Which reminds me, Alicia, that you've got to make up your mind—and right now."

"I don't like to be rushed," said Alicia. "Good Lord, nobody's rushing you! You've been trying to decide for weeks."

"I know, Bill, but I do so want to do the right thing. I've made so many mistakes during my poor little life," Alicia sighed. "I want to be sure for once that I'll have no regrets."

Bill watched her mix drinks, and thought of the men she had married. He wondered if they were the mistakes she had made. And as for the "poor little life" part of it, he didn't agree with her. Alicia Carter had done pretty well for herself, if anyone should come up and ask him. And as he saw the way she looked at him now and then, with something like invitation in her eyes, he decided that Susan had been right about her. Alicia liked men—and she wanted attention. She was doubtless enjoying keeping him at her beck and call. Well, one thing certain, she wasn't going to go on like that much longer.

"You carry these out, won't you, Bill?" she said, placing four tall glasses upon a tray. "Mr. and Mrs. Royster have never had mint juleps and they're all excited about having their first ones."

Bill took the tray. "Before we join them, Alicia," he said, "I want you to know that unless you make up your mind about this property within 86 hours, the deal's off."

"Why, Bill!" Alicia gasped. "That's not even two days."

"I know it isn't," said Bill. "But don't forget I want to sell homes to workmen while they are able to pay for them—while they need them. Not a year from now or three years from now."

Alicia looked hurt. Then she pouted.

"All right, you old slave driver, you!" she said. Bill played bridge very badly, and what was worse, he lost a considerable sum. And he was in no condition to lose money, at bridge or any other way. Then, too, the man Royster struck him as being a blowhard. His wife wasn't much better, as she bragged about their home near Baltimore. They talked when Bill tried to concentrate on his bridge, and glared when they were playing a hand and he said anything. Altogether it was a decided flop of an evening. And as the minutes dragged, Bill began to loathe Alicia Carter. She was something of a pain in the neck, so far as he was concerned. And the moment she signed on the dotted line he was going to leap right out of her life.

Presently, when he was dummy and Alicia was playing the hand, he let his thoughts revert to Susan—and to Adam North. He scowled as he visualized Susan in Adam's arms—back in Linville. Of course it was on a stage and it was a play, but Adam North looked too pleased when holding Susan close to him. Maybe Adam wasn't the perfectly safe young man and he other Linville husbands had been picturing him. Maybe he was a wolf in Galahad clothing. Still waters running deep, as the saying went. Quiet men being devils at heart. All that sort of thing. He'd be glad when that play business was at an end. It was bad enough having Susan hanging around Adam North's cafeteria, without having her hanging around his neck at rehearsals. Just let him find out that Adam North was getting familiar with Susan around the factory—and, boy, there'd be something for Linville to talk about! Adam North would look swell with a couple of shiners, and he, Bill Potter, was certainly the man to hand them out.

The more he thought about the matter, the madder he got, and the worse he played.

He began looking at his watch, wondering if he could possibly get home from Elmwood before Susan got home from rehearsal. He was afraid not, unless Mrs. Platt kept them longer at the high school than she had been doing. It was then that he began praying that the rehearsal would last until far in the morning hours. He hated the idea of sneaking in like a thief—making such an entrance into his own home—and yet he knew that's just what he would do if Susan got home first. If she was asleep he could manage it. If she wasn't he would probably end up by telling a fantastic story about working late at the office.

And it was all Alicia Carter's fault.

Grange Entertained By Achievement Program

Boys and Girls
Give Program At Washington

Washington township grange in splendid meeting Friday in Washington school auditorium heard the achievement program of the three 4-H clubs of the community. Participating were the Washington Farmerettes with Miss Margaret Good as leader, the Hill Climbers, boys' livestock club with Loring Leist as leader, and Mothers' Little Stitches, Mrs. Berman Wertman, leader. About 40 were present for the evening.

Loring Leist presented the club members who repeated the club pledge and sang America as the opening number of the program. Nancy Waple of the Mothers' Little Stitches 4-H club read a fine report of the summer meetings. Paul Brobst gave an excellent talk on "Market Sheep" and David Bolender, on "Market Hogs"; piano solo, Pauline Elliott; "High Lights of the Club Camp at Ross-Hocking", Paul Marshall; piano solo, Barbara Brobst; "Problems with a Dairy Calf", Martha Bolender; demonstration of the proper way to clean milk utensils, Jean Good and Martha Bolender; proper cooling of milk, Carl Palm and Waldo Martin; "High Lights of Camp Ohio", Fred Martin, and "Experiences with Ducks", June Knecht.

At the close of the impressive demonstrations and talks, light refreshments were served by the hospitality committee of the grange.

Ralph DeLong, worthy master, conducted the business meeting and announced that grange meetings would begin at 7:30 p. m. during the winter season. Plans were completed to send Christmas boxes to boys of the grange in overseas service. It was announced also that a group program would be presented at the next session. Mrs. Mae Groce was named program chairman.

Webb-Stambaugh
Miss Roberta Stambaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stambaugh, Circleville, became the bride of Corporal C. R. Webb of Fort Custer, Michigan, in a double ring ceremony performed September 25 in Battle Creek, Mich. The nuptial service was read at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wilkinson by the Rev. H. J. Fenning, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church.

The bride was attired in a street-length dress of egg-shell crepe with accessories of royal blue. Her corsage was fashioned of pink roses with a spray of blue delphinium. She carried a small prayer book with a metal cover which later was made a gift to the bridegroom.

Mrs. Matthew Schaefer of Akron, attended the bride as matron of honor. Her two-piece frock of gray wool was worn with black accessories. Her corsage was of red roses. Private Matthew Schaefer, also of Akron, served as best man for Cpl. Webb.

Mrs. Samuel Wilkinson and Mrs. Laura Whitney were hostesses at a small informal reception which followed immediately after the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Circleville high school in the class of 1939 and just recently resigned her position at the Curtis-Wright Corporation in Columbus.

Cpl. Webb was employed in Baltimore, Md., before he enlisted in the army.

Presbyterian Society
A fine meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary society was held Friday in the church social room with about 20 present. Mrs. Walter A. Downing was heard in an excellent talk on "India", the foreign missionary topic of the month, while Mrs. Jacob M. Masters presented a discussion on "Alaska", the national topic. Both papers were received with great interest by the society.

Mrs. J. B. Stevenson conducted the business hour, plans being made for an all-day sewing session October 15. The time will be devoted to work on the missionary sewing assignments of the year.

Miss Sadie Brunner conducted the opening devotional service.

Circle 7
Fourteen members and one guest, Miss Ada Hammel, attended the meeting of Circle 7 of the W. S. C. S. of the Methodist church Friday at the home of Mrs. N. G. Spangler, West High street. During the business meeting, Mrs. Charles Stoffer appointed Mrs. Will Avis, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. Lewis Sharp as a committee to call on members.

Mrs. Fred Duncan, co-chairman, opened the meeting with a reading and a prayer, and received the reports of the secretary and treasurer. It was requested that donations for South Side Settlement, Columbus, be taken to the November session and that the donations be marked "Circle 7." Plans were made for a rummage sale, October 22, the place to be announced later. The program included a reading,

Ted Steele has designed a flower chart on which members of the Presbyterian church may indicate the Sunday they wish to donate flowers as a gift in memory of a loved one or in honor of someone now living. The flowers thus donated will be used to decorate the front of the church each Sunday.

Sermon subjects of the Rev. G. L. Troutman, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, for Sunday will be: morning, "The Word That Takes in All Other Beautiful Words", and evening, "The Appointment All Must Keep."

As a follow-up of World Wide Communion Sunday as well as the fourth sermon in his series on great christian doctrines, the Rev. Carl L. Kennedy of the Presbyterian church will preach Sunday on the Church, his subject being "Why Go to Church." Special music will include the anthem by Rogers, "Lord, For Thy Tender Mercies' Sake" to be sung by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Clark Will. In her organ meditation starting at 10:30, Miss Abbe

PILGRIM CHURCH LEADING WAY WITH CRADLE ROLL

Circleville Pilgrim church is leading all other churches of its denomination in the Ohio district with a Cradle Roll enrollment of 122 children and also reports the greatest gain in Sunday School attendance and membership. There are 82 churches in the Ohio district.

The church is planning a Sunday School rally at 9:30 a. m. Sunday with Harry and Mary Carrell of Columbus, who play trumpet and accordion furnishing music.

The pastor, the Rev. J. O. Miller, will preach on "The Profit of Godliness", this subject being used in the morning service and "How to Make a Success of the Christian Life" when he speaks in the evening.

There will be a week end meeting starting next Wednesday with the Rev. L. W. Sturk of Cincinnati, new district superintendent, preaching the first night. This will be the pastor's first visit to Circleville.

REV. L. C. SHERBURNE WILL GO TO Ironton SUNDAY

The Rev. L. C. Sherburne of St. Philip's Episcopal church will preach Sunday in Ironton Christ church. The pastor is exchanging pulpits with Charles E. Ayers of the Ironton church, who will preach here.

Members of St. Philip's are urged to welcome Mr. Ayers with a good attendance.

Mills Clarke will play "Londonderry Air" by Coleman, Schubert's "Ave Maria" and "Now Thank We All Our God" by Karg-Elert. The offertory will be Grieg's "Cradle Song" and the postlude, an arrangement of Whiting of "The Son of God Goes Forth to War."

Lutheran meetings next week include: Tuesday, Christ church; Wednesday, Christ church; Thursday, Christ church; Friday, Christ church; Saturday, Christ church; Sunday, Christ church. The Rev. L. C. Sherburne will preach Sunday in Ironton Christ church. The pastor is exchanging pulpits with Charles E. Ayers of the Ironton church, who will preach here.

LENA DRAMATIC

Every time the sepiu songstress, Lena Horne, steps to the "What's New?" airshow mike, Saturday, every one listens breathlessly. Lena is vital and dynamic in her singing. She actually "lives" the song and sings with her eyes closed. Her voice is so naturally "true" that she doesn't have to cup her hand over her ear to hit a note correctly. Her singing of "Stormy Weather" and "Honey-Suckle Rose" were highlights of two "What's New?" airshows—and she is scheduled for several more appearances on the program this season.

GAY NINETIES MEDLEY

Tunes of the Gay Nineties, presented in distinctive Morton Gould style, will be the highlight of the Morton Gould-Alec Templeton "Carnival," on Wednesday, "Little Annie Rooney," "The Band Played

On," "You Tell Me Your Dream" and "Lilly of the Valley" comprise the medley. Alec Templeton offers as his pianistic features Jerome Kern's "The Way You Look Tonight," Hupfeld's "As Time Goes By," and his improvisations on themes suggested by the studio audience. Other orchestral selections include "Liza," "People Will Say We're in Love" and "Night and Day."

"SALUTE TO YOUTH"

Donald Dame, "Salute to Youth" lyric tenor who has just signed a Metropolitan Opera contract, joins with Nadine Conner, Met soprano regularly featured on the Tuesday night series, in a duet, "Are You Going to Dance," from Franz Lehár's "The Countess of Luxembourg," as the musical highlight of "Salute to Youth," on Tuesday. Raymond Paige conducts his "Young Americans" orchestra in a varied program, including a college medley, "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" and "Marie." Charles Libove, 17-year-old violinist, is featured in the introduction to "Marie." Miss Conner's solo is "In the Blue of Evening." The Service Story of the Week deals with the heroism of an American-born Chinese Air Force major, and the week's guest from the production line is J. B. Ingle, former head of huge rubber plantations in Malaya.

HAWK ON SATURDAY

Bob Hawk's "Thanks to the Yanks" comedy-quiz, formerly heard on Friday nights, is now on the air Saturdays at 6:30 p. m., via CBS. The broadcast is repeated for another group of stations.

BOB CROSBY'S "BOBCATS"

Bob Crosby, youthful and energetic boss of the "Bob Crosby & Co." airshow from Hollywood Sunday nights is gradually gathering his "old" and expert "Bobcats" bandmen back into the fold.

The original "Bobcats" aggregation was disbanded when Bob discontinued his stage dates and came to Hollywood with a picture contract. Some of the boys went into the armed forces, others joined other bands—still others formed their own music-making groups.

Then, when Bob Crosby and his musicians were signed for the Hollywood broadcasts, Bob sent out a frantic S. O. S. to his favorite band boys. It has taken several months for Bob to retrieve even five of his original "Bobcats"—Eddie Miller (saxophone); Doc Randall (saxophone); Bobby Goodrich (trumpet); Nappy Lamarr (guitar); and Matty Matlock (clarinet).

In addition, Bob has assembled

Carl C. Leist Reelected Chapter Chairman of Red Cross.

UNIT PREPARES ACTIVE PROGRAM DURING WINTER

School Children May Be Organized Into New Junior Branch

BLOOD DONORS SOUGHT

Many More Volunteers Required For Donations To Save Fighters

Preparing for a winter of activity in various fields, Pickaway county Red Cross trustees today announced election of Carl C. Leist, Pleasant street, to serve as chapter chairman for his tenth year. The trustees also named Leslie D. May, who headed the chapter's financial campaign last Spring, as its vice-president, chose Lyman A. Bell for treasurer and Miss Marvane Howard for secretary.

Mr. Bell replaces Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, of Williamsport, who declined reelection. Mrs. Hunsicker expressed regret at being forced to surrender her position, but declared that since she lives in Williamsport and so much of the work of Red Cross requires her presence in Circleville she felt she should give up the office.

Program Planned

Mr. Leist declared Saturday that Red Cross is undertaking a program that will keep several hundred Circleville and Pickaway county organization workers busy throughout the winter and far into the Spring. "Every day," the chapter chairman said, "Red Cross is taking on additional work in the war effort, and, while these jobs require much time and effort, the chapter intends to complete each task assigned to it." He called on the public to cooperate with the Red Cross in putting over its program.

Possibility that several hundred more workers will join the ranks of Red Cross in the city and county during the next month or two was expressed when the chairman said he has been instructed to appoint a committee to work through the schools in an effort to organize a Junior Red Cross unit.

"The Junior Red Cross, operating successfully in other cities and counties, could produce certain items for the senior Red Cross organization," Mr. Leist said. The various units of the Junior Red Cross would be assigned different projects.

The Ohio Fuel Gas Co.'s canteen unit, turned over to Red Cross for use as a feeding center to be transported to the scene of any disaster or other emergency location, will be brought to Circleville during three days of the Junior Fair, October 21, 22 and 23. It will be at the Court and Franklin street intersection where the public will be invited to inspect it.

Mr. Leist said representatives of first aid, home nursing and nutrition classes will be present during the afternoon and evening each day to discuss the programs being taught by the Red Cross.

Red Cross at present, in addition to serving as a contact between boys in service and their families, or vice versa, in case of emergency, is carrying on first aid, home nursing, nutrition work and is also in charge of collecting blood with which plasma is made for use in the countless war theatres throughout the world.

Mrs. Hulise Hays, registrar for the visit of the Franklin county mobile blood bank unit scheduled October 18 and 19, issued a call Saturday to all persons of the city and county to volunteer to give a pint of their blood to help the boys overseas. More than 300 volunteers will be needed for the two day visit, Mrs. Hays said.

The Red Cross is seeking blood from persons who have not yet made donations, pointing out that the 93 persons who have given three times and many others who have given twice have made a splendid contribution to the war effort.

The organization's nutrition course gets under way Tuesday evening in the recreation center at St. Joseph's Catholic church, and first aid classes are now in progress.

While these activities are going on, the knitting and sewing corps of the organization are carrying on their splendid job, preparing warm clothing of many kinds for men in all branches of service.

READY FOR RAIDS

NEW YORK. — New York City is completely staffed and equipped to aid persons either injured or made homeless in the event of an enemy air raid, Mayor LaGuardia announced today. Seventy-four emergency shelters are ready and others will be opened this Fall. Cash allowances, clothing and community feeding have been provided for.

attention to the phantom oil pipeline which the War department was laying from the Fort Norman oil fields in North Canada to White Horse, Alaska. It was pointed out that the pipeline had to be laid over icy mountains, on top of the ground at sub-zero temperatures, and that congealed oil could not be pumped at these temperatures.

Due to these and other difficulties, Petroleum Administrator Ickes wrote a letter to Secretary of War Stimson calling the pipeline impractical. As a result, Secretary Stimson ordered its construction stopped. However, Gen. B. B. Somervell later was able to proceed with it and the line is now more than half built.

Recently the Truman Committee sent a delegation of three Senators to Alaska and they have brought back an extremely critical report. They are in doubt whether the pipeline can be finished in time to serve any real military value in Alaska. When finished, they doubt whether it will be able to move oil at temperatures of 70 degrees below zero. Finally they are not sure that there is too much oil in North Canada to pump anyway.

The Senators also report that oil prospectors are now busy in Northern Canada looking for oil—at government expense. They also report that although the cost of the pipeline was supposed to be $31,000,000, actually the cost of the entire project will be many times that much. They cannot get a figure from the War department as yet, but it is whispered that it may run as high as $200,000,000.

The most amazing thing, however, is the report that after the war, the pipeline and the wells in North Canada will be turned over jointly to Imperial Oil Ltd and Standard Oil of California. The latter firm also got the juicy Elks Hills naval reserve lease, recently cancelled by the Government. It is significant that the former head of Standard of California, Ralph Davies, now deputy petroleum coordinator under Ickes, acted vigorously to stop the Canadian-Alaskan project—apparently working against the interests of his own firm.

Truman Committee senators have asked the War department for all dates regarding contracts with Canada and with private oil companies, but the Army has been very slow in coming through, which causes the Senators to suspect that the Alaska oil deal may be just as smelly as that at Elks Hills.

MAIL BAG

R. P. Cambridge, Mass. — The Navy denies that college students taking V-12 courses will be held in the service for six years after being commissioned. They will sign the same commitment as other reserve officers, which obligates them to active duty "in time of war or national emergency." It is generally expected that the national emergency will be officially terminated six months after the end of the war.

MERLE GARRETT HELD PRISONER OF WAR BY HUNS

Staff Sergeant Merle Garrett, 20, former resident of Circleville, is a prisoner of the German government, the Flying Fortress on which he was serving as a waist-gunner failing to return to its British base.

Young Garrett is the second Circleville district youth to be reported this week to be a German prisoner after having previously been reported missing in action. Lieutenant Lawrence Wolford, missing over the North Sea according to the war office report to his parents, is also in Germany. He, too, was on a Flying Fortress as a bombardier.

Sergeant Garrett is a brother of Mrs. William Imler of 573 East Franklin street and of Private Robert Garrett, Camp Sibert, Alabama. His wife, the former Bertha Toole of Ashville, and their baby, are living in Westerville. News that Garrett had been taken a prisoner was received by the wife.

The youth went into service in February, 1942, with a Circleville draft contingent and received his gunnery training at Harlingen air base, Texas, with Sergeant Benny Johnson, who is also a prisoner of war in Germany.

Churchill and Roosevelt seem to be the world's top trouble-shooters.

Beery, as Sergeant Major Bill Bailey, has that kind of a record and his daughter, Miss Maxwell, admires him for every day of it.

Ration Book No. 4 To Be Issued By Schools Beginning Wednesday

War Ration Book No. 4, which will be distributed through the schools as were Books 1 and 2 and the gasoline books, will be issued in Circleville and Pickaway county Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 27, 28 and 29.

George D. McDowell, chairman of the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office, said Saturday that the same procedure will be followed as in previous ration book registrations except that there will be no questionnaires to be filled out and no declaration of the amount of goods on hand.

Applicants will merely have to state their name, age and address. They will have to present Book Three when applying for Book Four. A single application must be made for an entire family or group of persons "related by blood marriage or adoption and living in the same household". Application may not be made for members of the armed forces.

Distribution of supplies to the various schools will be made with the assistance of the police and county sheriff's office.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Corporal Richard Brintlinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Brintlinger, 157 Pinckney street, has arrived home for a furlough from his station at Lakeland, Fla. The furlough is his first since he went into service eight months ago.

Sergeant Howard Richardson has been transferred from McCook, Nebraska, to the Army air base at Charleston, S. C.

Private First Class Thomas C. Dewey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Dewey, wrote a letter to his parents this week expressing appreciation for the many birthday greetings he received recently. Dewey said that he had just completed maneuvers lasting three weeks when he returned to his quarters to find a pile of greetings awaiting him. He is stationed at Camp Crowder, Mo., but is scheduled for a journey to California in a short time.

Corporal Ben Temple, who has been stationed at Langley field, Virginia, has been transferred to Elythe field, California. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Temple of Walnut township.

Private Noble E. Barr will have a birthday anniversary October 14. Greetings may be addressed:

Address of Jack Dewey of Williamsport is: Aviation Cadet James L. Dewey, ASN 15126986, Squadron A, Group 1, Flight 3, AAEP F5 (P) Maxwell field, Alabama.

FIRST AID CLASS TO START MONDAY NIGHT

Two first aid classes have been scheduled by the Pickaway county Red Cross chapter, one getting under way Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the courtroom of the courthouse under direction of Mrs. G. G. Campbell, and the other starting the same evening at Darbyville with Mrs. Donald Watt in charge.

Red Cross hopes to give instruction to several hundred persons this winter in Circleville and Pickaway county.

The Darbyville class will be the first one planned under the rural school program. It is for 17-year-old pupils.

Other classes will be organized from time to time throughout the county.

LLOYD SMITH WRITES ABOUT MUNDA BATTLE

Private First Class Lloyd Smith of Circleville, a member of the 37th Division, writes to relatives in Circleville that he participated in the successful American assault on Munda air base, wrested recently from the Japanese, and that he is in good health again after suffering from an attack of tropical fever.

Smith is a machine gunner, "and many other things," according to his letter.

At present, he is in a rest camp, but expects to be able to return soon to front line action.

RAPS AT LOITERING

Carl C. Leist Reelected Chapter Chairman of Red Cross.

UNIT PREPARES ACTIVE PROGRAM DURING WINTER

School Children May Be Organized Into New Junior Branch

BLOOD DONORS SOUGHT

Many More Volunteers Required For Donations To Save Fighters

Preparing for a Winter of activity in various fields, Pickaway county Red Cross trustees today announced election of Carl C. Leist, Pleasant street, to serve as chapter chairman for his tenth year. The trustees also named Leslie D. May, who headed the chapter's financial campaign last Spring, as its vice-president, chose Lyman A. Bell for treasurer and Miss Marvene Howard for secretary.

Mr. Bell replaces Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, of Williamsport, who declined reelection. Mrs. Hunsicker expressed regret at being forced to surrender her position, but declared that since she lives in Williamsport and so much of the work of Red Cross requires her presence in Circleville she felt she should give up the office.

Program Planned
Mr. Leist declared Saturday that Red Cross is undertaking a program that will keep several hundred Circleville and Pickaway county organization workers busy throughout the winter and far into the Spring. "Every day," the chapter chairman said, "Red Cross is taking on additional work in the war effort, and while these jobs require much time and effort, the chapter intends to complete each task assigned to it." He called on the public to cooperate with the Red Cross in putting over its program.

Possibility that several hundred more workers will join the ranks of Red Cross in the city and county during the next month or two was expressed when the chairman said he has been instructed to appoint a committee to work through the schools in an effort to organize a Junior Red Cross unit.

"The Junior Red Cross, operating successfully in other cities and counties, could produce certain items for the senior Red Cross organization," Mr. Leist said. The various units of the Junior Red Cross would be assigned different projects.

The Ohio Fuel Gas Co.'s canteen unit, turned over to Red Cross for use as a feeding center to be transported to the scene of any disaster or other emergency location, will be brought to Circleville during three days of the Junior Fair, October 21, 22 and 23. It will be at the Court and Franklin street intersection where the public will be invited to inspect it.

Mr. Leist said representatives of first aid, home nursing and nutrition classes will be present during the afternoon and evening each day to discuss the programs being taught by the Red Cross.

Red Cross at present, in addition to serving as a contact between boys in service and their families, or vice versa, in case of emergency, is carrying on first aid, home nursing, nutrition work and is also in charge of collecting blood with which plasma is made for use in the countless war theatres throughout the world.

Mrs. Hulise Hays, registrar for the visit of the Franklin county mobile blood bank unit scheduled October 18 and 19, issued a call Saturday to all persons of the city and county to volunteer to give a pint of their blood to help the boys overseas. More than 300 volunteers will be needed for the two day visit, Mrs. Hays said.

The Red Cross is seeking blood from persons who have not yet made donations, pointing out that the 93 persons who have given three times and many others who have given twice have made a splendid contribution to the war effort.

The organization's nutrition course gets under way Tuesday evening in the recreation center at St. Joseph's Catholic church, and first aid classes are now in progress.

While these activities are going on, the knitting and sewing corps of the organization are carrying on their splendid job, preparing warm clothing of many kinds for men in all branches of service.

READY FOR RAIDS

NEW YORK. — New York City is completely staffed and equipped to aid persons either injured or made homeless in the event of an enemy air raid, Mayor LaGuardia announced today. Seventy-four emergency shelters are ready and others will be opened this Fall. Cash allowances, clothing and community feeding have been provided for.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

attention to the phantom oil pipeline which the War department was laying from the Fort Norman oil fields in North Canada to White Horse, Alaska. It was pointed out that the pipeline had to be laid over icy mountains, on top of the ground at sub-zero temperatures, and that congealed oil could not be pumped at these temperatures.

Due to these and other difficulties, Petroleum Administrator Ickes wrote a letter to Secretary of War Stimson calling the pipeline impractical. As a result, Secretary Stimson ordered its construction stopped. However, Gen. B. B. Somervell later was able to proceed with it and the line is now more than half built.

Recently the Truman Committee sent a delegation of three Senators to Alaska and they have brought back an extremely critical report. They are in doubt whether the pipeline can be finished in time to serve any real military value in Alaska. When finished, they doubt whether it will be able to move oil at temperatures of 70 degrees below zero. Finally they are not sure that there is too much oil in North Canada to pump anyway.

The Senators also report that oil prospectors are now busy in Northern Canada looking for oil at government expense. They also report that although the cost of the pipeline was supposed to be $31,000,000, actually the cost of the entire project will be many times that much. They cannot get a figure from the War department as yet, but it is whispered that it may run as high as $200,000,000.

The most amazing thing, however, is the report that after the war, the pipeline and the wells in North Canada will be turned over jointly to Imperial Oil Ltd and Standard Oil of California. The latter firm also got the juicy Elks Hills naval reserve lease, recently cancelled by the Government. It is significant that the former head of Standard of California, Ralph Davies, now deputy petroleum coordinator under Ickes, acted vigorously to stop the Canadian-Alaskan project — apparently working against the interests of his own firm.

Truman Committee senators have asked the War department for all data regarding contracts with Canada and with private oil companies, but the Army has been very slow in coming through, which causes the Senators to suspect that the Alaska oil deal may be just as smelly as that at Elks Hills.

MAIL BAG

R. P. Cambridge, Mass. — The Navy denies that college students taking V-12 courses will be held in the service for six years after being commissioned. They will sign the same commitment as other reserve officers, which obligates them to active duty "in time of war or national emergency." It is generally expected that the national emergency will be officially terminated six months after the end of the war.

MERLE GARRETT HELD PRISONER OF WAR BY HUNS

Staff Sergeant Merle Garrett, 20, former resident of Circleville, is a prisoner of the German government, the Flying Fortress on which he was serving as a waist-gunner failing to return to its British base.

Young Garrett is the second Circleville district youth to be reported this week to be a German prisoner after having previously been reported missing in action. Lieutenant Lawrence Wolford, missing over the North Sea according to the war office report to his parents, is also in Germany. He, too, was on a Flying Fortress as a bombardier.

Sergeant Garrett is a brother of Mrs. William Imler of 573 East Franklin street and of Private Robert Garrett, Camp Sibert, Alabama. His wife, the former Bertha Toole of Ashville, and their baby, are living in Westerville. News that Garrett had been taken a prisoner was received by the wife.

The youth went into service in February, 1942, with a Circleville draft contingent and received his gunnery training at Harlingen air base, Texas, with Sergeant Benny Johnson, who is also a prisoner of war in Germany.

Churchill and Roosevelt seem to be the world's top trouble-shooters.

They're both stuck on the Marines, and who wouldn't be after 30 years of service in that branch of the Navy. Beery, as Sergeant Major Bill Bailey, has that kind of a record and his daughter, Miss Maxwell, admires him for every day of it.

Ration Book No. 4 To Be Issued By Schools Beginning Wednesday

War Ration Book No. 4, which will be distributed through the schools as were Books 1 and 2 and the gasoline books, will be issued in Circleville and Pickaway county Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 27, 28 and 29.

George D. McDowell, chairman of the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office, said Saturday that the same procedure will be followed as in previous ration book registrations except that there will be no questionnaires to be filled out and no declaration of the amount of goods on hand.

Applicants will merely have to state their name, age and address. They will have to present Book Three when applying for Book Four. A single application must be made for an entire family or group of persons "related by blood marriage or adoption and living in the same household." Application may not be made for members of the armed forces.

Distribution of supplies to the various schools will be made with the assistance of the police and county sheriff's office.

The reason for asking the schools to handle the Book Four distribution is that it is difficult to obtain volunteer help, or paid help for that matter, in any one community. Besides it was considered only fair that each community share the burden of this job.

"The schools did a fine job in distributing the other ration books," said Inwood Smith, Columbus OPA district board operations officer in charge of the Book Four distribution, "and with the cooperation of our local War Price and Rationing boards, we are confident that an equally creditable job will be done with Book Four."

War Ration Book Four is expected to last for two years. It has eight pages, containing a total of 384 stamps, printed on safety paper in blue, red, green and black ink. The green stamps will be used on an interim basis in connection with the blue processed food stamps in much the same way that the brown stamps in Ration Book 3 are now being used in the meats and fats program.

There are 96 unit stamps printed in black ink. The word "spare" appears on 72 of these stamps, to be used in the case additional ration currency is needed for any of the programs. Twelve of the stamps have the word "sugar" printed on them, and an equal number are designated for coffee, which is no longer rationed. Now that coffee rationing has been suspended, this strip of 12 coupons can be used as spare stamps.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Corporal Richard Brintlinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Brintlinger, 157 Pinckney street, has arrived home for a furlough from his station at Lakeland, Fla. The furlough is his first since he went into service eight months ago.

Sergeant Howard Richardson has been transferred from McCook, Nebraska, to the Army air base at Charleston, S. C.

Private First Class Thomas C. Dewey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Dewey, wrote a letter to his parents this week expressing appreciation for the many birthday greetings he received recently. Dewey said that he had just completed maneuvers lasting three weeks when he returned to his quarters to find a pile of greetings awaiting him. He is stationed at Camp Crowder, Mo., but is scheduled for a journey to California in a short time.

Corporal Ben Temple, who has been stationed at Langley field, Virginia, has been transferred to Elythe field, California. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Temple of Walnut township.

Private Noble E. Barr will have a birthday anniversary October 14. Greetings may be addressed:

FIRST AID CLASS TO START MONDAY NIGHT

Two first aid classes have been scheduled by the Pickaway county Red Cross chapter, one getting under way Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the courtroom of the courthouse under direction of Mrs. G. G. Campbell, and the other starting the same evening at Darbyville with Mrs. Donald Watt in charge. Red Cross hopes to give instruction to several hundred persons this Winter in Circleville and Pickaway county.

The Darbyville class will be the first one planned under the rural school program. It is for 17-year-old pupils.

Other classes will be organized from time to time throughout the county.

Private Noble E. Barr, 35226399, 3rd Eng. A. U. T. C., 2065th PLPN, Camp Pontchartrain, New Orleans, La.

Private First Class James Richard Stump has as his address: 3205 O. M. Service Co., A. T. B., Fort Pierce, Fla. He has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Heffner, West High Street, of his pleasure in the many birthday cards and gifts received by him on his anniversary.

Private Lewis J. Black, who has just completed his basic training with the U. S. A. A. F., Patterson field, Fairfield, is spending a three-day pass with Mrs. Black and their daughter, Linda, of 153 Walnut street.

Corporal Frank Hill of New Holland has been transferred from Camp Mackall, N. C., to Fort Sill, Oklahoma. Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hill, is training in the glider field artillery organization.

Warren R. Seeds of Ashville, formerly stationed at Camp Campbell, Ky., has been granted a medical discharge. Seeds enlisted in the Army in June, 1942.

Address of Jack Dewey of Williamsport is: Aviation Cadet James L. Dewey, ASN 15126986, Squadron A, Group 1, Flight 3, AAFB F5 (P) Maxwell field, Alabama.

Private First Class Link Brown of Fort Thomas, Ky., is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Brown, Madison township, for a 10-day furlough. Brown was wounded in North Africa and has been serving recently as a military policeman at Fort Thomas.

John E. Thomas, seaman first class, is ill in the U. S. Naval hospital at Key West, Fla. He would appreciate mail which should be sent to this address: John E. Thomas, S 1/c, Ward A, U. S. Naval hospital, Key West, Fla. His brother Verneal, a yeoman second class, stationed in the coast guard at Lorain, arrived home Friday night to attend the funeral of his grandmother, Mrs. George Tatman.

"MRS. Miniver", starring Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, is shown Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Circle theatre.
